THREE SECTIONS WANT STATE TO BUILD ROAD

Delegations Told One Route, Only, Will be Authorized.

IS UP TO LEGISLATURE

Representatives of Different Parts of County Unable to Agree Among Themselves Which Section Should be Favored First.

Delegations representing three different State road projects held a meeting with Representative Gramley in the arbitration room at the Court House on Monday morning. Nothing much was accomplished since Mr. Gramley explained that but one of the projects could go through and the representatives of the three roads could not, or would not, get together on the one it should be.

It is possible that the present Legislature will grant no additional road projects, fearing that to approve a few would be to open the door to a flood of similar propositions from all parts of the State. Mr. Gramley said he was confident, however, that he could get one road bill through. He would not venture to suggest to the three delegations that met him on Monday which of the three proposed routes should be favored.

One of the State highways desired extends from the Old Fort to Linden Hall and Oak Hall to Lemont. Another runs from Potters Bank via Tusseyville and Boalsburg to State College. The third route runs from Bellefonte to WarriorsMark, through Spring, Benner, Patton, Halfmoon and WarriorsMark townships. Delegations last week visited Harrisburg to urge favorable action on the two first named routes. On Tuesday morning a delegation went to Harrisburg to press the claims for the route from Bellefonte to WarriorsMark. Those who went included Frank H. Clemson, George J. Stevenson, A. C. Thomas and William G. Furst. Newton Wilson and several others from Halfmoon township went to Harrisburg, via Tyrone. They had arranged with Representative Gramley for a hearing before the sub-committee of the House Committee on Roads, met the committee on Tuesday afternoon and returned home yesterday.

All of the road bills referred to are still tied up in the House Committee on Roads. Just what road legislation is likely to go through will become known when the bills reach the Senate calendar.

Young Man Taught Lesson.

Charged with grossly insulting a woman on Eleventh street in Altoona shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday night, a Tyrone youth, who gave the name of Lester D Strickler, was arrested by Patrolman Graybill and when arraigned before Alderman Crampsey, sitting as police magistrate, was fined $50.80. His action was so bold and outrageous that he narrowly escaped the vengeance of a crowd that assembled.

During the evening several women suffered indignities at the hands of a young man, but the police were not at first able to locate the offender. A few minutes before 10 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bangs were walking along Eleventh street when Strickler crowded in close to Mrs. Bangs and grabbed hold of her in a most insulting manner. The woman screamed and Mr. Bangs grabbed the man, at the same time shouting for an officer.

Patrolman Graybill was not far away and he soon arrived on the scene. C. E. Rhodes, C. L. McIntyre and O. G. Crist, railroad officers, were also at hand and they formed a cordon about Strickler. A crowd quickly gathered and the man would have been roughly handled but for the presence of the officers. When taken to the police station he was required to put up $50.80 security and this amount was levied against him when he appeared for a hearing.

LUTHERANS IN SESSION

Northern Conference of Central Penna. Held at Spring Mills.

The Northern Conference of the Evangelical Lutheran church of the Central Pennsylvania Synod was held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran church at Spring Mills. An especially interesting program of services was conducted.

On Monday the Conference sermon was preached by the President, Rev. B. F. Bieber, of West Milton. Devotional services were conducted on Tuesday by Rev. L. S. Spangler, of Pine Grove Mills. Rev. Dr. C. T. Aiken, of Selinsgrove, delivered an interesting sermon on the Augsburg Confession, Art. XIX, "Of the Cause of Sin." Preliminary to observing the Holy Communion the sermon was preached by Rev. M. D. Geesey, of Aaronsburg. At the afternoon session on Tuesday Conference business was conducted, following which prospects for Lutheran Brotherhoods for the Northern Conference were discussed by Harry A. Gast and R. F. Beck. Rev. J. I. Stonecypher, of Boalsburg, gave an interesting and instructive talk on Lutheran Young Peoples' Societies. On Tuesday evening T. M. Gramley, of Spring Mills, conducted a praise service. Rev. Jacob Diehl, of Lock Haven, discussed the importance of applying a system in church finance and Rev. J. E. F. Hassinger, of Rebersburg, discussed the value of the Church paper in the home.

At the opening of yesterday's session Rev. Arthur Harris, of Hartleton, conducted the devotional services. Conference business was next considered and then Rev. F. Aurand, of Mifflinburg, discussed the "Church in Relation to Society." The morning sermon was delivered by Rev. H. L. Gerstmyer, of New Berlin. Conference business was taken up as the first order at the afternoon meeting. "The Children and the Church" was a subject handled in an effective manner by Rev. W. M. Rearick, of Mifflinburg. Another interesting topic was "The Sunday School," discussed from two viewpoints. The first was "The Pupil and the Teacher," presented by Rev. B. F. Bieber, and the second was "The Home and the Sunday School," the discussion being led by Rev. M. J. Ross, of Salona. At last night's meeting Rev. Mr. Stonecypher conducted a praise service and Children's services were in the hands of Rev. Mr. Ross and Rev. Mr. Diehl.

Plunged Over Embankment.

Saturday night about 11 o'clock as Adam Messerly and John Coleman, of Woolrich, were passing the John Myers farm on the river road enroute from this city to their home, driving C. H. Rich's horse in a top buggy, with the top up, an automobile came up behind them, frightening their horse so that he leaped sideways and plunged over the embankment taking the buggy and occupants with him, says the Lock Haven Democrat. Mr. Messerly was caught under the buggy with the back of the seat resting across his back and Mr. Coleman's feet were pinned down by another part of the buggy. The horse at first lay upon the broad of his back but in his struggles he soon released himself at the same time releasing Mr. Coleman. Mr. Coleman while hurt about the ribs and side, succeeded in lifting the buggy sufficiently to enable his companion Mr. Messerly to extricate himself. The buggy top was crushed to pieces and one shaft was broken while the horse after eleasing himself ran down the beach and up on to the road where he stopped and was caught and brought back by a boy who came along at the time on a bicycle. With the aid of his bicycle lamp he assisted the men to the roadway and later they were assisted to their homes. The men are both very sore, but as no bones were broken they are able to be about, although they ran a narrow chance for their lives. The automobile driver who caused the accident did not stop.

Three Barns Burned.

Three barns at Lewisburg were destroyed by fire Sunday morning, and the fact that the rain had wet adjoining houses saved a whole block from going up in flames. The fire originated in the barn of Rev. Henry Benfer, pastor of the United Evangelical church, and quickly spread to the barns of I. J. Bennage and James Forrest. All three were burned to the foundation.

Philipsburg Couple Arrested.

Officer Moore, of Philipsburg, last week brought to Bellefonte Ernest Vieard and wife, of near that place, who are charged with conducting a house of questionable repute and also with larceny of $5. The couple were lodged in jail.

JAMES C. FURST TAKES BRIDE IN WILLIAMSPORT

Nuptial Ceremony in First Presbyterian Church

COLONIAL HOUSE READY

An event of interest socially to Bellefonte and Williamsport was the wedding at the latter place last night of Miss Mary Adele Harrar and James C. Furst. The groom is a son of the late Judge A. O. Furst and is a practicing attorney at the Centre County bar. The bride is well known in social circles in Williamsport and has visited in Bellefonte on a number of occasions. On their return from a honeymoon tour to eastern points Mr. and Mrs. Furst will occupy the pretty Colonial home built by the former on West Linn Street, just across the street from the residence of his mother, Mrs. Caroline Chamberlin Furst.

Last night's nuptial ceremony was performed at eight o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church of Williamsport, Rev. William C. Hogg officiating. The church was prettily decorated with palms and daisies, yellow being the color scheme throughout. Mrs. John Curtin, of Bellefonte, the groom's sister, was matron of honor. She wore a white lace gown and carried yellow jonquils. The bride's sister, Miss Mable Harrar, was maid of honor. She was dressed in yellow and carried white flowers. The bridesmaids wore yellow brocaded charmeuse and carried yellow jonquils. They were Miss Grace VanDusen, Miss Mary Rhoads, Miss Clara Gibson and Miss Lillian Harrar. The groom was attended by his brother, Walter Furst, as best man. The ushers were William L. Chamberlin, of Scranton; John Curtin, of Bellefonte; R. Marshall Wilson, of Milton; W. Sanderson Detwiler, of Columbia; Hugh Laird Curtin, of Bellefonte, and J. Norman Sherer, of Harrisburg.

Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal couple appeared before the Rev. Mr. Hogg. The bride was given to be married by her brother, Dr. James A. Harrar, of New York. She was handsomely dressed in white charmeuse, brocaded front panel, trimmed with rare old lace which belonged to her mother. She carried a bridal boquet of lilies of the valley and yellow orchids.

Following the ceremony at the church there was a wedding reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elwood Scott Harrar, 915 West Fourth Street. At 11.15 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Furst departed on their bridal tour.

The wedding guests included Mr. and Mrs. William B. Chamberlin and Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Chamberlin, of Milton; William S. Furst and Miss Sarah Watson, of Overbrook; Mrs. James I. Chamberlin, of Harrisburg; Mrs. Addie Slenker, of New Berlin; Mr. and Mrs. James S. Chamberlin, of Merion; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wagner and Jay Wagner, of Watsontown; W. Cordus Snyder of Snow Shoe; and the following from Bellefonte: Mrs. Caroline C. Furst, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Morris, Miss Elizabeth Gephart, Miss Sarah Potter, Mrs. Evelyn Rogers, Mrs. J. Coburn Rogers, Mrs. Catherine Dinges, Colonel and Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds, Miss Mary H. Linn, Henry C. Quigley and Master John Curtin, the groom's little nephew.

The bride was the recipient of many handsome gifts. These included a mahogany library table, a number of Oriental rugs, Westminster chimes clock, a Sheffield tray and numerous articles in gold and silver.

Huckster Drove Into Creek.

A huckster who gave his name as Oswald spent some time and also some money in Tyrone on Monday evening and then started for Pennsylvania Furnace with a wagon load of chickens and a buggy hitched on behind. He became confused in the dark and drove into the Bald Eagle creek. Ten men and a rope and tackle rescued Oswalt but seventy-three chickens were drowned. Oswald was locked up until Tuesday morning, by which time he was not so confused.

Senator Herbst Stricken.

Senator E. M. Herbst, of Berks County, a well known figure in Democratic circles in Pennsylvania, was stricken with paralysis at his home on Monday night. His condition is critical. Senator Herbst is quite well known in Bellefonte. He visited here but a few weeks ago with the Senate Appropriations Committee to inspect the Bellefonte hospital.

WILLIAM A. MAGEE WEDS MISS LEILA MAY HUYETT

Former Bellefonte Boy Claims Bride at Centre Hall.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Groom is Engaged in United States Customs Service in Philadelphia—Bride is Popular Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Huyett.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season, as well as one of interest to many friends of the contracting parties, both in Centre County and Philadelphia, was that at 6 o'clock last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Huyett, at Centre Hall. The happy bride was their daughter, Leila May Huyett, and the groom was William Austin Magee, of Philadelphia, son of Mrs. R. M. Magee and formerly a resident of Bellefonte.

The ceremony was witnessed by the families and a few intimate friends. A large reception followed. The out-of-town wedding guests included a number from Bellefonte and others from Philadelphia, Reading and Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Magee departed later in the evening on a wedding tour to Canada. On their return they will reside in Philadelphia, in which city Mr. Magee is engaged in the United States customs service.

Rev. Fred W. Barry, pastor of the Centre Hall Lutheran church, officiated at the wedding ceremony. The bride, who was given to be married by her father, was charmingly dressed in white satin, artistically draped. She wore a long tulle veil and orange blossoms and carried a boquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley. The groom was attended by his brother, Forrest N. Magee, of Philadelphia. Miss Miriam Huyett was flower girl. She was dressed in white batiste with valenciennes lace and carried a Marie Antoinnette basket filled with spring blossoms. Mrs. Huyett, the bride's mother, was dressed in gray crepe de chine. Mrs. Magee, mother of the groom, wore black lace over white satin. The bridal party entered the beautifully decorated parlor of the Huyett home to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, as played by Boyd H. Magee, brother of the groom.

The Bellefonte guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. John P. Harris, Dr. Edith Schad, Miss Helen Harper, Mrs. J. A. Aiken, Miss Emma Aiken, Mr. and Mrs. P. Gray Meek, Miss Mary G. Meek, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Meek, Hard P. Harris and Andrew R. McNitt.

The bride is one of Centre Hall's most popular and talented young ladies. She is well and favorably known in Bellefonte, where she has frequently visited. The groom has a host of Bellefonte friends. Although he has resided in Philadelphia for a number of years he has never lost his attachment to and interest in his former home town and its people. He is a young man of ability and by his energy and close attention to business has advanced himself until he now holds a responsible and desirable position in the Department of the Collector of Customs in Philadelphia. He is especially fond of and interested in outdoor sports and is a well known figure in rowing circles in Philadelphia

May Build Town Hall.

The building of a town hall is being agitated in Millheim and indications are that the project will go through. At a recent town meetng to consider the matter Dr. G. S. Frank, the presiding officer, advocated the sale of non-interest bearing bonds and the building of the hall with the proceeds. He suggested that the bondholders receive all the income from the hall until the bonds are cancelled. Dr. Frank, S. Ward Gramley and John H. Maize, as a committee, are canvassing the citizens of Millheim to learn how much money may be raised in the manner outlined. If enough pledges are obtained to see the matter through a bond issue for that purpose will at once be authorized.

Delivered Interesting Lecture.

Prof. R. L. Watts, of State College, delivered an interesting lecture on Tuesday night before the St. Paul's club, at Lock Haven. His subject was "Better Farming, Better Business, Better Living."

Had Leg Amputated.

MUST PAY BOUNTIES

Counties Liable According to Decision by Superior Court.

Considerable interest has been aroused in Centre county by a decision announced in a news dispatch to have been made by the superior court making is obligatory on boards of county commissioners to pay bounties for the killing of noxious animals whether the legislature does or does not make appropriations to meet the amount of money disbursed. The decision was made in the case of R. J. Brink, Rome township, Bradford county, who killed two gray foxes and who went before a justice of the peace with the pelts of the animals. The justice cut and burned off the ears of the pelts and gave Brink two certificates for two dollars each. Brink presented the certificates to the county commissioners at Towanda and was turned down by them on the ground that they had no funds available with which to pay the bounties.

Brink brought suit in the court of common pleas to recover the bounty, but lost out. He then took an appeal to the superior court. The text of the decision of the superior court has not been received here and the county commissioners are in the dark as to the points covered. The view of the commissioners is that some question not affecting the situation in this county must have been raised.

The legislature of 1909 failed to make an appropriation to pay bounties and the legislature of 1911 followed in the footsteps of its predecessors except that it reimbursed boards who had paid out money under the bounty act in 1909 in the belief that an appropriation would be made that year. The commissioners of this county was reinbursed in that way Since then they have no further payments of bounties.

At the office of the commissioners it was announced that the board had ceased making payments by direction of the auditor general at Harrisburg and that they were at a loss to know how payment by the commissioners could be enforced when the legislature had appropriated no funds for the purpose. Their view was that the bounty was entirely a state affair and that in paying bounties the commissioners acted only as the agent of the common wealth.

As it now stands it is certain that the commissioners of this county will make no bounty payments. They do not believe that they have any legal right to pay out the money of the taxpayers o the county without provision being made to reimburse the county for its outlays.

Within the past four years many applicants have appeared at the office of the commissioners with certificates of justices of the peace, showing that they have put noxious animals to death. These have been told that they must await the making of an appropriation by the legislature providing funds for the payment of bounties.

BERRY LANDS PLUM

Independent Democrat Appointed Collector of Port at Phila.

President Wilson last Thursday shook the plum tree for the benefit of Pennsylvania office seekers and three jobs fell to faithful Democrats of the Keystone State. William H. Berry was nominated for collector of customs at Philadelphia, Samuel J. Graham, of Pittsburg was named for Assistant, Attorney General and T. H. McKenzie was given the postmastership at Barnesboro, Cambria County.

Berry and Graham had the endorsement of National Committeeman A. Mitchell Palmer and State Chairman George W. Guthrie, and although there was considerable opposition to Berry's appointment, these recommendations were potent enough to secure the job for Berry. The place pays $8,000 a year. McKenzie was recommended for postmaster by Representative Warren Worth Bailey, of Johnstown, in whose district the office lies.

These appointments demonstrated beyond any doubt that Representative Palmer and Mr. Guthrie are to be recognized by the Administration as the dispensers of Federal patronage in Pennsylvania. Very strong reasons will have to be brought forward to obstruct their selections for places.

Baseball Saturday.

The Academy baseball club will play the Lyceum nine, of Altoona, on Hughes field, Saturday afternoon, next, at 2.15 o'clock, sharp. This should prove to be a first-class game, the opposing clubs apparently being evenly matched.

Fire at Nigh Bank

The Harry Hockenbury home at Nigh Bank was completely destroyed by fire on Friday afternoon of last week.

PROF. JACKSON TO HEAD NEW STATE DEPARTMENT

Governor Tener Gives Honor to State College Man.

PAYS $8,000 PER YEAR

Dean of Engineering School Named to Take Charge of Recently Created Department of Labor and Industry at Harrisburg.

Professor John Price Jackson, dean of the engineering school at The Pennsylvania State College, has been tendered and has accepted the position of chief of the new Department of Labor and Industry, at Harrisburg. The post pays $8,000 annually.

At the instance of Governor Tener legislation has been enacted abolishing the old Department of the Factory Inspector and creating the Department of Labor and Industry. The functions of the department will include those of that abolished but with wider powers. It is said that Frank Feeney, until recently chief of the Bureau of Elevator Inspection in Philadelphia, will be chosen chief inspector in the new department. Feeney for years has been prominently identified with labor unions in Philadelphia.

The decision by Governor Tener's to have the old factory inspector department abolished and supplanted by a larger and more completely equipped department was reached some months ago. It will be recalled that Captain John C. Delaney retired by request of the Governor on the eve of the convening of the Legislature. Delaney for many years had been chief of the factory inspection service at Harrisburg. On many occasions child labor societies and other organizations had lodged complaints against Delaney but his political influence was always strong enough to hold him in office. Several months ago, however, Delaney claimed to have in his possession a written confession by the late John H. Sanderson, principal contractor in the furnishing of the new capital building and one of those subsequently convicted in the scandal which stirred the State from one end to the other. Delaney declared that the confession had been made by Sanderson on his death-bed and that it involved men "higher up."

If the purpose of Delaney's statements was to force Governor Tener to retain him in office he fell down in his calculations. The Governor sent for Delaney, demanded that the latter make public the Sanderson confession and when this was refused he acted without a moment's delay. He fired Delaney to take effect at once. With Delaney down and out the Governor set about to prepare legislation reorganizing the factory inspection service and placing it in a new department. At that time he let it be known that he wanted a man of recognized ability, one combining knowledge of engineering and executive capacity, to head the new department. Several days ago it was formally announced at Harrisburg that the Governor had decided on Professor Jackson for the important position.

Celebrated Golden Wedding.

Fifty years ago on Sunday, April 13th, D. K. Miller and Miss Sarah Yearick were married at Jacksonville, by the Rev. J. K. Millet and the anniversary of the occasion was celebrated in an informal manner at the Miller home at 106 East Church street, Lock Haven, on Tuesday, the 15th.

From 2 until 5 o'clock an informal reception was held and upwards of a hundred friends and neighbors of the bride and groom called at the house to extend felicitations and best wishes for continued happiness and unmarried matrimonial bliss. Eight children came to bless the union of Mr. and Mrs. Miller and they were all present on this auspicious occassion except one and the gathering was one never to be forgotten by parents and children.—Clinton County Times.

Married at Niagara Falls.

A delightful surprise to the many friends of the happy young couple in Bellefonte and Pleasant Gap was the announcement this week that Miss Emma C. Hall, of this place, and Harvey H. Hoy, of Pleasant Gap, were married at Niagara Falls on April 7th. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Hall and is a young lady possessing many pleasing qualities. Mr. and Mrs. Hoy will go to housekeeping at Niagara Falls, at which place the groom is employed. Their friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

FIFTH HOLDS REUNION

Spanish—American War Veterans Have Enjoyable Time at Altoona.

The sixth annual reunion of the Fifth Regiment, Penna. Vols., Spanish—American War, of which Company B, of Bel[illegible] a part, was held at Altoona Saturday. The "Tribune" of that city published the following interesting report of the day's proceedings:

Saturday was a gala day for the veterans of the Fifth regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, in the city when the sixth annual reunion of the Veterans' association was observed. Two hundred members of the organization, representing the twelve companies which formed the regiment, were present at the festivities and the entire celebration was voted to be the most successful in the history of the organization.

Ex-soldiers began arriving in the city early Friday afternoon and evening and they continued to flow into the city until afternoon on Saturday. Shortly after 1 o'clock there were more than 185 registered at headquarters and others arrived still later. The committee in charge of receiving the veterans headed by Sergeant Samuel H. Yocum, assembled at the Pennsylvania station early in the day and conducted the incoming soldiers to their hotels and headquarters at the G. A. R. hall on Chestnut avenue where they were registered and then were handed over the keys of the city which they used to favorable advantage.

At 2.30 o'clock, the executive session of the association was called to order by President Charles R. Simpson, who briefly stated the object of the meeting and what business was on the table to be given attention. Following a short session, the Columbian quartette was introduced and rendered various selections which recalled happy hours spent in camp to the veterans present. The vocalists, comprising O. B. Cartwright, George A. Brechbill, J. H. Minnich and J. M. Ebright, won a storm of applause that brought them back for a rendition of other old favorites of the ex-soldiers in '98. Dr. A. S. Stayer, the major-surgeon of the regiment, was then called upon by the president to deliver the address of welcome in behalf of the local boys. His remarks were well received and were eloquent throughout. Lieutenant R. B. Pierce, of Saltsburg, then responded in behalf of the visiting comrades in an able manner that was greatly appreciated. The minutes of the last session were read and approved, after being presented by Secretary Lieut. J. C. Dunkle, of Huntingdon. The standing committee on obituaries gave a report, in which there were noted four deaths during the year past. The president then appointed Maj. A. S. Stayer, Lieut. S. D. Gettig, and R. B. Pierce, as a committee to draw up regulation resolutions to be sent to the families of the deceased comrades and record them upon the minutes also. These men were also requested to investigate and learn if the organization may be of any use to the friends of the departed veterans in any manner.

The location for the next reunion was then brought before the association, for which Blairsville, Lewistown and Gettysburg were strong applicants. Hon. John D. Keith, of Gettysburg, then delivered a very eloquent address in which the excellent advantages that the town of Gettysburg would afford the veterans for the next reunion were told of. He extended a hearty invitation to the members to his town and concluded by hoping that they would consent to bring the 1914 reunion to the famous settlement. Following this appeal, Lewistown and Blairsville withdrew and the session for the coming year was unanimously chosen to be held at Gettysburg. The date for the event will be left to the newly elected officers, with the condition that it be not later than April 25, and during the last week of April.

The next important part of the afternoon session was that of the choosing of the officers for the coming year. The following veterans were selected to hold office: President, Lieutenant Ross A. Hickok, Harrisburg; first vice president, Lieutenant H. E. Burchfield, Altoona, second vice president, Sergeant J. M' Chase, Grampian; third vice president, Corporal W. J. McIlhenny, Gettysburg; secretary, Lieutenant John C. Dunkle, Huntingdon; treasurer, Sergeant Joseph Butler, Altoona; and chaplain, Corporal John J. Weaver, Altoona.

Other minor matters of a routine nature were disposed of and the business of the afternoon was concluded by a brief address by President Simpson, in which he related the remainder of the day's program and what amusements the committee had prepared for the veterans and their wives. The association then adjourned until the meeting at Gettysburg in 1914.

The wives of many of the ex-soldiers accompanied them to the reunion and during the holding of the various sessions spent the time in making social calls upon acquaintances in the city and surrounding towns. After the business session had closed the veterans visited the high school building, the various public buildings and parks and some paid visits to the suburbs and others took advantage of the beautiful day and motored about the city.

The time was all too short and the veterans finally assembled at headquarters at 8.30 o'clock, from where they marched to the Elks' home, the place of the holding of the feast. The famous old drum corps which was so extremely popular in bygone days, led the line of marchers, some 200 in all. When the large company of hungry veterans and their better halves had been seated about the brilliantly lighted tables a flashlight was taken. The excellent ten-course banquet, which was served by Frederick A. Menge, the steward of the club assisted by George Briscoe, and a corps of efficient waiters from the Logan house was highly enjoyed by the banqueters and the feast was discussed leisurely for several hours. The flow of wit and the demonstrations of the keen fellowship which are prevalent among the boys of the Fifth added to the occasion greatly and the menu of delicacies proved to be one that enlivened the participants as they discussed the various courses.

The Riggs orchestra and the popular Columbian quartette of singers, delighted the throng with their pleasing efforts and whatever selection the veterans desired, the request was immediately granted. Colonel Theodore Burchfield, who was the leader of the Fifth, accepted the role of toastmaster and numerous veterans responded to his call. They were Hon. J. D. Hicks, Dr. A. S. Stayer, Edwin M. Amies, of Altoona; Captain Hugh S. Taylor, of Bellefonte; John D. Keith, of Gettysburg; R. B. Pierce, of Saltsburg; Hon. George C. Irwin, of Holidaysburg; Sergeant Joseph H. Butler and various others of the association.

As midnight approached the company arose and sang, "God Be With You Until We Meet Again," which was dedicated to Francis Murphy, the former chaplain of the regiment and the great temperance worker.

Veterans, Attention!

The Acts just passed by the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, regarding the great Gettysburg Reunion Celebration, at Gettsburg, Penn., July 1-4 next, were immediately approved by Governor Tener, and the one appropriating $165,000 for the Pennsylvania Commission to provide free transportation to Gettysburg and return makes the following (5) Classes of Soldiers, Sailors and Marines of the Civil War eligible to such transportation, Provided the war record of each applicant is first proven to be correct by the Pennsylvania Commission:—

Class A. All Honorably discharged Soldiers who enlisted from this Commonwealth and served in a Pennsylvania Regiment, or any unit of Pennsylvania Volunteers, at any period during the Civil War, including commands of the Pennsylvania Volunteer Militia (Emergency Regiments) and independent companies batteries and troops, who are now living in Pennsylvania as citizens of this Commonwealth.

Class B. Any of the above who are now living in other States, but Pennsylvania provides these free transportation to Gettysburg and return only from the Railroad station on the border of Pennsylvania which is nearest to their present residence; also.

Class C. To any Soldier either Union or Confederate, borne upon the rolls of any other State as a Civil War Veteran, but now living within Pennsylvania as a citizen of this Commonwealth, such transportation may be issued: likewise

Class D. To United States Regulars, Soldiers of the Civil War, now living within Pennsylvania as citizens of this Commonwealth: and in addition.

Class E. To United States Sailors and Marines, Veterans of the Civil War, now living in Pennsylvania as citizens of the Commonwealth.

All applications therefor must be made, and before June 1st, and the earlier the better, to the Pennsylvania Gettysburg Commission, at the Capitol, Harrisburg, Pa., and upon Application Blanks now procurable from said Commission, wherein must be stated explicitly the War record, etc., of each applicant, who must, in applying for such Application Blank, state what Class he comes under.

State Defeated West Point.

The Penn State baseball club got away with two nifty victories last week. Enroute to West Point Penn State stopped over in Allentown and shut out Lehigh University, 2—0. On Saturday Penn State walloped West Point, 13—2. This defeat is the second only suffered by West Point in the present season. Wardwell, who was in the box for Penn State, held West Point to one lonely single and no runs until the ninth inning, when the Army boys managed to get two runners across the plate. Penn State scored one run in the second inning, three in the third and in the fifth eight more. After that the Army settled down and Penn State got but one more run. Keller, third baseman for Penn State, cracked out a three base hit off Neyland, West Point's pitcher.

Lost Out to Juniata.

The Bellefonte Academy team had hard luck in the game with Juniata College, at Huntingdon on Saturday. Bigler, Juniata's catcher batted out four hits, including a home run and a three-bagger. Juniata was out of it until the ninth inning when 3 runs were brought in, making the score 8—7 Symes was in the box for the Academy It was his first defeat for this season.

Picking a Pocket.

A youth from the country was paying his first visit to Manhattan and, accompanied by his uncle, a New York banker, went to the theater. While waiting in the lobby before the performance the country boy flung back his coat and with hands in his pockets displayed a heavy gold watch chain. The uncle observed the act and resolved to teach him a lesson. While his attention was diverted the uncle slipped the watch and chain from the boy's vest, and they entered the theater. "What time is it?" he asked when they were seated. The country youth felt for his timepiece and found that it was gone. Allowing him to make a thorough search for it, the uncle told him he had taken it and read him a sharp lecture. "You are not in the country now, you know, where you can display valuables with impunity. You should be more careful. Let this be a lesson to you." So saying, he slipped his hand into his coat pocket where he had put the watch. To his utter dismay, he found it was gone. And when he looked to see if his own was safe he found that also had taken wings.—New York Tribune.

Tea Drinking as an Art.

Hot China tea, neither too strong nor stewed, should be drunk slowly. Some people put a clove or two in their cup of hot tea. Sugar candy is often used instead of lump sugar, and there are sugar bonbons that dissolve quickly in tea and are popular.

Some hostesses have their own sugar lumps made with special coloring and flavoring to suit their individual tastes. There are balls of white fondant strongly flavored with lemon or orange juice; others pink, flavored with rose; violet, flavored with violets, and green balls that have a maraschino cherry inside.

Tea to be iced should be made rather stronger than for drinking hot. When it has infused seven minutes pour it from the leaves and sweeten to taste and then stand it in a refrigerator for seven hours. Serve in dainty glasses with a spoonful of vanilla cream on the top or else drop a small lemon water ice into the glass.—London Mail.

Where the Dogs Work.

Life is a vastly different thing to the Alaskan dog from what it is to his more fortunate brother with us. He is the hardest working member of the community and the most important social and commercial factor in the frozen country, for without him travel and intercommunication would be impossible during a great part of the year. Almost every man in this country owns from one to five dogs. They are his constant companions, aiding him in nearly all his work. When a pup is three or four months old he is given a course of training in the harness. At the age of seven or eight months he must start in with light work and must understand and obey "whoa," "gee," "haw" and "march," which latter means "go on" and is commonly pronounced "mush" by all men driving dogs.—Country Life in America.

A Very Frank Lawyer.

Joseph W. Folk said that while governor of Missouri he received the following application from a young attorney for commutation of sentence of death from Pemiscott county:

"This was my first case as a lawyer, and I admit that I didn't know very much about defending a man for murder. I believe that if this negro had had a real lawyer to defend him he would have been acquitted. I don't believe you ought to let him hang for my ignorance."

Folk looked over the record in the case, thoroughly agreed with the lawyer regarding the manner in which the case had been handled and commuted the sentence.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Crude Cannon.

Of the early cannon, the larger ones were made by taking bars of iron and binding them together with hoops leaving a hole in the middle. The shot consisted of scraps of iron and often small stones. If they got too much powder in the gun the barrel would explode, and there would be the deuce to pay. The enemy were not the only ones that were in danger in those days. The gunner took his life in his hand every time he applied a match to the touchhole. But, with all that, many battles in early times were decided by cannon.—Exchange.

Free Medical Advice.

Want some free medical advice? Here it is, from Dr. Strickland Goodall of London, and it is for business men who advertise and hence are busy, see? Thus: Devote one hour to each meal, avoiding all business talk. Have no fads in food. Be moderate. Probably the last is the key to the whole. "Be moderate."

Good, easy advice, don't you think?—Detroit Free Press.

Dressed For the Occasion.

"Before I take this dress off," said the woman to the home dressmaker, "I want to go into the kitchen and read the riot act to Maria."

"Oh, not with this dress on!" the dressmaker protested. "She is cooking, and the grease might pop"—

"Can't help it," the woman interrupted. "Maria needs a lecture. She has been needing it for some time, but I didn't dare deliver it because I hadn't good enough clothes to make it effective. Maria is black and judges people by the clothes they wear. If I had scolded in my shirt waist and skirt or even in my old blue afternoon dress Maria would have scorned me, but with all this finery on I can speak my piece, and Maria will be properly impressed, and maybe she will reform."—New York Times.

Williamsport Boy Rewarded.

In the awards of the Carnegie Hero Fund commission, announced last week, appears the following:

"Sheldon V. Clarke, bronze medal and $2,000, as needed, for educational purposes. Clarke, aged 17, rescued boy from drowning, Williamsport, Pa., June 3, 1912."

Sheldon V. Clarke, whose bravery the Carnegie Fund Commission thus recognizes is the eldest son of Major William P. Clarke, city editor of the Gazette and Bulletin of Williamsport. He is a great-grandson of William F. Packer, fourteenth governor of Pennsylvania and a great-great-great-grandson of Michael Ross, the founder of Williamsport. He is a member of the junior class at the Williamsport High school and resides with his parents at the homestead, 409 East Third street.

He did not know that the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission had even heard of the act which has won for him his medal and his college course until a month ago John Benitz, a special agent for the commission arrived in Williamsport, called upon him and made a searching inquiry into the facts in the case.

The rescue took place June 3, 1912. A party of boys, not all of them together, had been swimming in the river off the first pier from the south end of the Market street bridge at Williamsport, a favorite swimming place during the summer time. Clark had finished his swim and left the water. While climbing up the pier to get out of his trunks and into his clothing his attention was attracted by the shouts and struggles of one of the boys in the water.

There was a three foot flood in the river and a strong current at that point but without a moment's hesitation he swam to the drowning boy, who had by that time been carried by the current some little distance down the river. Realizing the danger of letting a drowning boy get hold of him he managed to support him and at the same time fight off his hands, several times finding it necessary to push the struggling form away from him and tackle it again.

He had kept the boy's head above the water for more than five minutes, every second of it a struggle against the death grip the boy was endeavoring to get, and trying to get him toward the shore when Common Councilman Jacob J. Moltz heard the cries and went to his aid in a boat. Both boys were completely exhausted and but for the timely appearance of Mr. Moltz both would have been drowned.

Pennsy's Loss in Flood District.

Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently authorized the following statement:

"It is now possible to state the extent and to estimate the cost of the damage to the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh caused by the recent floods in the Middle West.

"Twenty-four bridges were destroyed and fifty were damaged covering a total of about a mile and a half of single track. The cost of replacing and repairing these bridges will be about $1,145,000.

"In order that the movement of trains should not have to await the permanent replacement of bridges, it was necessary to construct immediately an amount of temporary trestle work equivalent to 428 miles of single track at a cost of $862,000.

"The length of road requiring repairs amounted to 163.39 miles, affecting 218 miles of track. The estimated cost of these repairs will amount to some $1,587,000.

"Including the above and adding the cost of damage to stations, equipment, telegraph lines and other property, the total loss on all Pennsylvania Lines amounts to $3,610,000.

The above items of expenditure, under the rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission, are charged to operating expenses but not compulsorily included in the year incurred. It should be borne in mind, further, that these losses take no account of the reduction in revenue for March and April due to the very serious interruption of traffic, though the lines have now been restored to normal service, and customary gross earnings are again being realized.

"The officers and the employes of the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh have done remarkably efficient work in restoring their lines to service. Immediately the seriousness of the storm damage was known, the Company placed all its facilities at the command of the state authorities of Ohio and Indiana for the relief of the afflicted area.

"Simultaneously, most energetic efforts were instituted to repair the various lines and re-open them without delay to the service of the public. That this work has been done so promptly, so carefully, and with such freedom from casualty, reflects every credit upon the officers and employes faced with responsibility for meeting this extraordinary emergency.

"No event in the history of railroading in this country has shown more convincingly the necessity for the railroads to be permitted to earn sufficient revenue not only to make reasonable return on invested capital but also to have a surplus sufficient to meet emergency expenditures like these and to improve the properties in those respects which, even if not adding to gross revenue, make the lines better adapted to withstand the ravages of storm and flood and the better able to perform their duties to the public with efficiency and satisfaction.

Criticizes Women's Clothes.

Dr. Theodore Diller, head of the insane department of St. Francis Hospital at Pittsburgh, has no admiring eye for clinging things of charmeuse or crepe meteor, airy trifles of French hand-painted chiffon, or the dainty allurements of silken hose with flutters of lingerie peeping audaciously forth to dazzle the optic of mere man. He said so, in effect, several days ago at the session of the Conference on Mental Hygiene.

Dr. Diller made an address on "The Social Evil and Insanity." He said he did not like to talk about the social evil, for it has been talked about entirely too much now, but since he had been given such a subject he must speak plainly.

"I do not wish to offend or to reprimand women," he said, "but I must tell them that the clothing they wear has much to do with the temptations of men. I do not say that women wear such voluptuous clothing, displaying their forms, because of any conscious knowledge of the result, for some of the purest-minded and most innocent women deck themselves in costumes which are highly seductive. But they should not do it. And I believe if they understood they would not do so."

Will Charge For Slag.

Beginning with May 1st, the Bellefonte Furnace Company will charge for all slag removed from the slag bank on the company's property. For a two-horse load the charge will be 25 cents. For a one horse load the charge will be 15 cents.

Statement to Hunters.

Many of the hunters of Centre county and vicinity have been much exercised since the hunters' license bill was signed by Governor Tener about the time when they can take out licenses and where. The state game commission is going to give every hunter a reasonable time in which to get a license, and Secretary Joseph Kalbfus, of the commission, has issued the following statement:

"House Bill No. 218, requiring all resident hunters to secure a license before beginning to hunt for anything protected by the laws of this State, has become a law, and we are already in receipt of applications for licenses under the provisions of this act. I desire to say for the benefit of the public that while this bill has been signed by the governor, and is therefore, the law, the game commission is not disposed to attempt to impose penalties upon the people until sufficient time has elapsed, through which they can be given an opportunity to understand and comply with the new conditions. Time alone will be required for the preparation, the printing and the distribution of the licenses and tags required by this act. We are working as rapidly as possible to complete this arrangement; but cannot at this time, say when the licenses and tags will be ready for distribution; it may be two or three months before this can be done. In the meantime nothing will be done by this office to impose penalties upon any one. I call the attention of the public to the fact that no license is required for the hunting of either birds or quails not protected by the law."

The Dark of the Honeymoon

Showing the Difficulty of Working In Double Harness

By M. F. ARCHIBALD

A newly married couple have often been compared to a team of horses yoked for the first time in double harness. It is an excellent comparison. The start is made when the wedding journey is over and the couple enter upon the routine of ordinary life. Their expectation usually is that the billing and cooing will last so long as they live. But lovers are elevated upon an emotional plain that cannot be maintained any more than one can listen to music or look at beautiful works of art or read poetry day in and day out without doing anything else.

On starting upon a united journey they find that one has been accustomed to go at one pace, the other at another. One has one gait, the other a different one. But it is the coming down from the antenuptial roseate condition that often brings about the breaking in to traveling double on life's turnpike.

Phil Ormsby and Rosalind Scrimser returned from their wedding journey to enter their cozy little home. Rosalind was nineteen and Phil was twenty-eight. Rosalind was at an age wherein a newly married person, especially a woman, is not prepared for a sudden descent from the courtship condition.

Phil was naturally practical and old for his age. The season of preparation for the wedding had come upon him when he was actively engaged in business, and the two together had worn upon him. Then came the honeymoon, and, though at first it brought a delightful rest, before it was finished he desired to get back to some important matters which he had left unfinished. The result was that when he found himself at home he was pleased to return to a normal condition both in his private and business life. The first day on coming home from business he greeted his wife with just a trifle less of a lover's exuberance than he had been in the habit of showing, and, throwing himself in an easy chair, took up an evening newspaper and began to look it over.

His wife eyed him askance. They had entered upon the collapse of the courtship honeymoon period, the beginning of the real matrimonial life. Unfortunately both had not reached the portal of their new companionship at the same moment. As in the case of a span of newly yoked horses, where the one has settled down to a trot while the other is still caracoling—so had Phil entered upon the affairs of ordinary life, while Rosalind had not left a world of romance.

Phil went on reading his newspaper. He was somewhat tired, but this was not the prime course of his disposition to glance over the news of the day. He half expected that his young wife would say whatever she might have to say, while he read, but she didn't. Finally he looked up. There was a cloud on Rosalind's face no bigger than a man's hand.

"Anything especial happened during the day?" he asked.

"A great deal has happened, but you have been so occupied with your newspaper that I supposed you took no interest in your home."

"What's gone wrong?"

"Nothing that would interest you."

"My dear, how can you say that? Anything that concerns you interests me."

"So I thought, until you came home the first evening after our return from our wedding journey and took more interest in the world's news than in your own household."

Phil didn't reply to this at once. For months he had been very much pleased at any reproach for any inattention to his love. Now he wondered why this one annoyed him.

"Tell me, sweetheart, what has gone wrong today."

"Oh, nothing that you need worry about. I dare say the cares of business have been quite enough for you to endure. I can bear the rest."

"Tell me one thing you have had to bear."

"Well, in the first place, I telephoned the butcher to send a porterhouse steak and he sent a sirloin."

"That's too bad. What else?"

"There are mice in the house. One came out today and ran along the baseboard."

"We'll put traps about."

"Or a cat."

"That's a good idea."

He drew her down onto his lap and there was a little cooing, but somehow now that they could coo as much as they cared to, there didn't seem to be the same zest to it. At any rate, Phil was not sorry when they were summoned to dinner.

A fortnight passed during which there were many recurrences of such scenes, though the husband did not succeed in maintaining his serenity as well as upon their first tiny spat. During these two weeks the bride was rapidly coming to the condition of one who assumes that in her marriage a terrible mistake has been made, that her husband doesn't love her, and the bottom has dropped out of the universe.

One afternoon, returning from business, Phil found his abode empty and a note from his wife stating that she could not stand the existing status any longer. She had gone to live the rest of her life with her mother and would never return to him.

Most men would have looked upon this kicking of the matrimonial traces on the part of his running mate as a very serious matter and would have gone after his wife to try to pacify her or to upbraid her; but, as I have said, Phil had an old man's head on a young man's shoulders. He did nothing of the kind. Rosalind expected him to follow her and either beg for pardon or reproach her. She looked for him as soon as he had had time to come after reaching home. She kept her eyes on the clock, watching the dragging minute hand, thinking at times that its movement had ceased, and every minute after Phil had had ample time to reach her was one of agony. She stood at a window, where she could look out on the street and watch the clock at the same time, and every time she heard a footfall on the sidewalk her heart began to beat like a drum. The day died, darkness fell, and no repentant husband.

When her father came in he was informed by his wife that their daughter had been driven out of her home by a brutal husband. He had "been there" himself when a young man and did not take so radical a view of the matter. When his wife urged him to seek Phil and either bring him to reason or horsewhip him he said:

"I will have nothing to do with the matter, and my advice to you is to keep out of it yourself."

For two days Mr. Scrimser held the two women down—he said afterward it was like sitting on the lid of a boiling kettle—and then a terrible looking communication came for Mrs. Ormsly with an awful triplet of names in the left hand upper corner, "Crawshaw, Brinkerhoff & Snaffield, Attorneys and Counselors at Law." Rosalind collapsed. Her mother fanned her and put a smelling bottle under her nose. Her father was not in the house.

Finally the young wife started up and tore the envelope to tatters. There was enough of the contents hanging together to show that the firm had been retained by Philip Ormsly, her husband, to enter a suit against her for divorce on account of desertion.

Mrs. Ormsby put a hat on her head wrong end forward—jabbed a spike in it and in as quick time as she could get there was in the office of Messrs. Crawshaw, Brinkerhoff & Snaffield. After sending in her name she was ushered into the private office of Mr. Snaffield, of whom she had heard her husband speak as one of his acquaintances.

"I came to ask," she said, plucking up an appearance of severity, "the nature of these proceedings for which you have been retained."

Mr. Snaffield tapped a silver bell. A hungry looking clerk with a complexion as yellow as paper a century old came in and was instructed to bring the papers "In re Ormsby versus Ormsby."

"I care nothing about the horrid papers," said the lady, knocked from her equanimity at the mere mention of the "in re." "I wish to know whether this suit has actually been begun in the courts."

"Our business is very extensive," replied the lawyer. "It is impossible for us to keep track of all our cases. The papers will show"—

"I wish an interview with my husband."

"An interview between you and the plaintiff can only be arranged with his consent, and we have at present no instructions on the subject. Meanwhile if you desire to transmit any proposition for either reconciliation or settlement out of court to Mr. Ormsby it can be done through our firm."

"Do you suppose," cried the wife fiercely, "that I would approach my wedded husband through a firm consisting of three men with such a frightful string of names as Crawshaw, Brinkerhoff & Snaffield?"

"Pardon me, madam, you forget that we are Mr. Ormsby's attorneys and are in duty bound to protect him."

"Protect him! Do you suppose I wish to tear him to pieces? Oh, my goodness gracious! I shall go wild with all this horrid law formality."

"By no means, madam. But we must have rules of procedure, and cannot have a special rule for each case. Some of our clients in the divorce courts would not meet a husband or a wife on any account. We do not know that Mr. Ormsby would wish to avoid meeting you, but"—

"I demand to see my husband. I don't wish to create a scene in his office, and I would not be likely to find him at our home. If you don't arrange"—

The door opened and Phil Ormsby entered.

"Hello! Snaff, what's required?"

"Oh, Phil," exclaimed his wife, "how can you treat me so?"

Mr. Snaffield left the room.

"How treat you so?"

"Begin this horrid divorce business. Do withdraw it and let's forget and forgive. I dare say I've been very unreasonable."

"So unreasonable, sweetheart," taking her in his arms, "that I have thought you should be taught a lesson. This divorce business is a put up job, to show you what may be the result of domestic quarrels. I asked my friend Snaffield to show you how a real divorce would feel. Come home with me and we'll forget all about it."

"It will always be like a horrid dream to me."

So they kissed and made up. That happened ten years ago. The Ormsbys have long ago got used to the humdrum of life and with their children make a happy family.

How to Prevent Oats Smut.

"Our oats has been infested with smut the last few years. Could you tell me what to treat the seed oats with so as to prevent smut? If you can, I shall be very thankful."

Thus wrote a Pennsylvania farmer to Professor H. A. Surface, state zoologist, Harrisburg, to which request for information the latter replied as follows:

"Replying to your recent letter, asking what to do for oats smut, I beg to say that this can be prevented by soaking the seed oats in a week formalin solution, using one pint of formaline to 50 gallons of water, or in that proportion. Soak the seed about 40 minutes, having it in a sack, so that you can put it down into a barrel containing the liquid. By lifting the sack up and down you can get the liquid to penetrate through the entire mass of seed. After it is well soaked, spread it on a clean barn floor and let it dry; then go ahead and sow it, and you will have no smut. If it should dry too slowly, shovel it over occasionally.

Instead of putting the oats in a sack and standing this in a barrel of the liquid it is more convenient and fully as effective to put the seed oats in a pile on a clean barn floor, and with a sprinkling can sprinkle the formalin solution over it until it is thoroughly wet. Shovel it over occasionally in the pile and continue sprinkling to be sure to have it will soaked.

Then lay blankets over it for one hour. After this spread the oats on a dry portion of the floor to let it dry and open the doors so that the air will blow through and facilitate drying. Occasionally shoveling the oats, and turning when drying, will also help this process. Drill at any time afterward.

"Exactly the same treatment is recommended for seed potatoes, to destroy the germs of scab that may be upon them and cause deep rough pits in the skin as though bug eaten. Formalin, or formaldehyde, can be purchased from leading drug firms. It is commonly used as a disinfectant. If the diluted liquid is kept covered so that the formalin fumes do not evaporate, it can be used over and over again."

Fire at Boalsburg.

The beautiful home of Mrs. Calvin fisher at Boalsburg was completely destroyed by fire on Thursday afternoon of last week. The Houtz ice house on the adjoining property was also destroyed. The Fisher barn, completely filled with hay, was on fire several times but the building and contents were saved. It is supposed that the blaze was caused by some children playing with matches in the wood-house at the rear of the Fisher home. The flames quickly communicated to the residence. Lack of fire protection gave the flames free headway and there was no hope from the beginning of saving the Fisher home. Mrs. Fisher was in Bellefonte at the time. The George Fisher family were at home and with the aid of neighbors succeeded in removing the greater part of the furniture, clothing, etc., from burning building. A telephone message for help was sent to State College and Burgess Foster and quite a number of others responded, making the trip to Boalsburg in automobiles. The loss to the Fisher property is upward of $2,000. Mrs. Fisher will rebuild at once. Meanwhile she will make her home with her sister, Mrs. Stuart. The George Fisher family will reside temporarily with Mrs. Fisher's mother, Mrs. Samuel Rine, in Bellefonte.

Progressive Advertising Agency.

Hill and Tyron, a well known advertising agency in Pittsburgh, although one of the younger agencies in the advertising world, has recently found it necessary to take the full length of the Wood street front of the new First National Bank Building, Pittsburgh, to take proper care of its increasing business. In addition to the home office at Pittsburgh, Hill and Tryon have found it necessary to open branch offices in New York City, Detroit and Buffalo. The growth of the business is attributed to the definite policies of the firm with regard to the character and possibilities of the clients whose business it accepts. The personnel of the company has been selected with great care, with a view to supplying the best services possible in the handling of all forms of advertising literature, the work of the company embracing everything in advertising from the preparation and printing of a small mail enclosure to the largest composite campaign.

Fleming Couple Married.

At the First Presbyterian parsonage in Altoona on Wednesday afternoon of last week, Rev. H. L. Bowlby performed the ceremony that united in marriage Mr. George A. Tolbert and Miss Sidney B. Shipley, both of Fleming. The impressive ring ritual of the Presbyterian church was used. The bride is a daughter of H. A. Shipley, of Fleming, and the groom is just completing a course in electrical engineering. A position is awaiting him in Michigan, where they will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Tolbert remained in Altoona over night and returned to Fleming on Thursday, where a reception was tendered them and where numerous congratulations awaited them.

A Wasp's Strategy.

A mud wasp was seen to alight within an inch or two of a spider's nest on the side opposite the opening. Creeping around toward the entrance to the nest, the wasp stopped a little short of it and for a moment remained perfectly quiet. Then, reaching out one of his antennae, he wriggled it before the opening. A moment later he withdrew the "feeler." This overture had the desired effect, inasmuch as the head of the household, a big spider, came out to see what was wrong and to set it to rights. No sooner had the spider emerged to that point at which it was at the worst disadvantage than the wasp with a quick movement thrust its sting into the body of its foe, killing it easily and almost instantly. The experiment was repeated by the wasp, and when there was no response from the inside he evidently became satisfied that he held the fort. At all events, he proceeded to enter the nest and slaughter the young spiders, which were lugged off one at a time.—Harper's Weekly.

Belgium's Curious Land Law.

One of the curious phases of the land law in Belgium is that the earth of a landowner beyond a certain depth does not belong to him. Should the owner of the surface discover a coal or gold deposit underlying his property he must first obtain a government concession before he can begin mining operations. The land beyond the prescribed depth in which wealth in the raw has been discovered may be conceded to a person other than the surface owner, who may operate under certain government regulations, one of which is that the owner of the surface is entitled to 3 per cent of the value extracted. The mine pays to the government an amount determined by the value and importance of the concession, after which it must pay to the government a sum proportioned to the value of the total extraction.

Great Expectations.

Aunt Sallie came to the town's Lady Bountiful one day and asked for the loan of a dollar.

"What do you want a dollar for, Aunt Sallie?" the Lady Bountiful inquired.

"Please, ma'am," said Aunt Sallie, "I'm goin' to git married."

"But if your man hasn't even a dollar to pay for the marriage license how will the pair of you get along?"

"Well, ma'am," said Aunt Sallie, "tomorrow's your birthday, and we're both comin' to your picnic in the birch woods. You always give us somethin' to take home from your birthday picnic, and the day after there's your usual free basket distribution for the unemployed. That'll keep us a week easy, and by that time Joe and me'll be on our feet, mebbe."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Curious Archipelago.

The Maldive archipelago, lying in the Indian ocean, several hundred miles southwest of the southern point of Hindostan, is inhabited, but it rarely sees visitors from the civilized world. These islands, all composed of coral rock, are no fewer than 14,000 in number. Few of them rise more than seven or eight feet above the sea level, although they contain cocoanut palms and other forms of vegetation. Hundreds and hundreds of little islands, ranged round in a circle, with narrow and shallow channels between, form atolls or rings, having quiet waters within. Occasionally in this unique group an individual island is found in the form of a ring with a smooth lake inclosed in its coral embrace.

Handel's Pensions.

No other musician of his time was so fortunate in money matters as Handel. For a "Te Deum" composed to celebrate the peace of Utrecht he was given a pension of £200 a year until his death, making £9,600 in all. Another of his compositions secured a pension of a similar amount from George I., and for the last twenty years of his life he drew a further £200 a year from Queen Caroline. So, although he lost £10,000 in an unsuccessful attempt to run opera in London, Handel died possessed of £20,000, the largest fortune realized by any musical composer until the dawn of the nineteenth century.

The Dogcart.

A memory of the times when dogs worked for a living in England is seen in the "dogcart," which originally was literally drawn by dogs and, until prohibited in 1839 by act of parliament, was the workingman's usual means of taking a run into the country. Strong half bred mastiffs were usually employed, and these thought nothing of conveying their masters fifty or sixty miles in a day with no more sustenance than bread soaked in beer.

The Allspice Tree.

The pimento, or allspice, tree is cultivated in the West Indies and Jamaica. This beautiful tree usually grows to a height of about thirty feet. It has a straight trunk, much branched above and covered with a very smooth brown bark. The leaves vary in size and shape, but are always of a dark, shining green color. During the months of July and August the tree is in full bloom, the blossoms consisting of very fragrant small white flowers. In favorable seasons the pimento crop is enormous, a single tree often yielding a hundred or more pounds of the dried spice. The berries are picked while green, because if left on the tree until ripe they lose their pungent taste and are valueless. The green berries are exposed to the sun for a week or ten days, when they lose their green color and turn a reddish brown. When perfectly dry they are put in bags and casks for exportation. The odor and the taste of the pimento berries are thought to resemble a combination of those of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves; hence the familiar name "allspice."

A Queer Fact About Vision.

In the eye itself certain things may go on which give us wrong sensations, which, although not truly illusions, are very much like them. Thus when we suddenly strike our heads or faces against something in the dark we see "stars," or bright sparks, which we know are not real lights, though they are quite as bright and sparkling as if they were. When we close one eye and look straight ahead at some word or letter in the middle of this page, for example, we seem to see not only the thing we are looking at, but everything else immediately about it and for a long way on each side. But the truth is there is a large round spot somewhere near the point at which we are looking in which we see nothing. Curiously enough, the existence of this blind spot was not discovered by accident, and nobody ever suspected it until Mariotte reasoned from the construction of the eyeball that it must exist and proceeded to find it.

He Would Push Too.

A gentleman with a well fed appearance who motored over from the nearest town to deliver his lecture, "The Art of Getting On," in the village schoolroom, concluded with a fine burst. "The successful man is the man who strives persistently. His motto is 'Push, and keep pushing,' for by that and that alone he reaches his goal." Before the audience made much headway with their clapping a small man at the back got in a laugh that might have come from a megaphone. The lecturer held up his hand for silence.

"You, too, my friend, will have to push," he commenced.

"So will you, I reckon," interrupted the small man. "There is half a dozen kids pinching the gasoline out of your motorcar to light a bonfire."—New York Telegraph.

An Awed Gunner.

A Maine hunter who is a crack shot tells a curious story about himself. While hunting one day he came upon a fine large deer not more than two rods away. He attempted to raise his rifle to his shoulder, but his arm became suddenly paralyzed. All he could do was to stand there and watch the deer disappear in the distance. Then his arm resumed its normal condition, and he started on the trail once more. After awhile he came upon the deer a second time, and again the hunter tried to raise his rifle, and again his arm refused to serve him. Then he gave it up and went home, impressed with a sense of awe and a conviction that he had better leave that particular deer alone.

The Regret of His Life.

Sir William Grove, the eminent scientist and jurist, never forgave himself for not discovering the spectroscope. "I had often observed," he said, "that there were different lines exhibited in the spectra of different metals ignited in the voltaic arc, and if I had had any reasonable amount of wit I ought to have seen the converse—viz, that by ignition different bodies show in their spectral lines the materials of which they are composed."

The Retreat From Moscow.

Napoleon's army for the invasion of Russia numbered over 400,000. Only 20,000 returned. During the retreat thousands of horses lay groaning on the route, while thousands of naked wretches were wandering like specters who seemed to have no sight or sense and who only kept reeling on till frost, famine or the Cossack lance put an end to their power of motion. In that wretched state no nourishment could have saved them. Innumerable dogs crouched by the bodies of their former masters, looking at their faces and howling their hunger and their loss. Besides their suffering from the cold and for the want of food, they were assailed on all sides, not only by Russian soldiers, but by peasants through whose country they passed. Altogether, Napoleon's retreat from Moscow was a complication of misery, of cruelty, of desolation and of disorder that can never have been exceeded in the history of mankind.

Broken China Roused Him.

When Canon Rawnsley was collecting information in the lake district about Wordsworth, he came upon an old man who had been a servant at Rydal Mount. This whilom retainer told many interesting stories.

Wordsworth, it seemed, was very absentminded. He always forgot the dinner hour.

"I'd goa," the old man remarked, "to study door and hear him a-mumblin' away to 'sself.

"'Dinner's ready, sir,' I'd ca' out, but he'd go a-mumbling on like a deaf man, ya see. And sometimes Mrs. Wudsworth 'ud say: 'Goa and brek a bottle, or let a dish fall, just outside his door in passage.' Eh, dear, that maistly wad bring him out, wad that. It was nobbut that as wad, howivver. For, ye kna, he was a very careful man and he couldn't do with brekking t' china."—Pearsons.

A Telepathic Clock.

Here is a strange yet absolutely true story, in which a clock plays a mysterious part: It was a small American timepiece which stood on a mantelpiece in a sitting room in a Liverpool builder's home. At 11:30 one morning the timepiece fell from the mantelpiece to the floor. When picked up it was found to be quite uninjured and still going, as if nothing unusual had happened. There seemed to be absolutely no reason why it should have fallen, but an hour later when the builder came home to his midday meal he remarked that at 11:30 he fell from the top of a building, but happily without sustaining any injury. His wife then described how the clock had fallen at the same time and the couple ponder in vain over the curious and utterly inexplicable coincidence.—Liverpool Post.

The Explosion of a Flower.

Sometimes the floral spathe of a great palm tree will fly open with a sound like a detonation in a mine. Such an event occurred in a botanical garden in Algiers recently. The spathe, nearly three feet long, was projected to a great distance and for some moments the head of the palm tree was wreathed with golden dust formed of the debris of the flower. The sun's heat had roasted the flower to the color of rust. The director of the garden explained the explosion as being due to a fermentation in the flower caused by the extraordinary dryness of the air. A violent sirocco had just passed. In Algiers ostrich eggs explode in the same way and from a like cause.—Harper's.

Avoiding the Doctor.

Dr. Sanderson, an old Scotch physician, was a queer character, but a clever doctor.

So roughly did he handle his patients that the ignorant were chiefly anxious to escape him. The story goes that as he was passing along the street one day a sweep rolled from the top to the bottom of a staircase outside one of the houses.

"Are you hurt?" called the doctor, running forward.

"Not a bit, doctor—not a bit," replied the man in haste. "Indeed, I feel a' the better."

Pronunciation.

Here is a curious couplet which illustrates in one sentence the various values of the combination "ough" and shows how strikingly inconsistent are the spelling and pronunciation of some English words. The lines may be supposed to be the words of an invalid who had a strong will and was determined to live in spite of his ailment:

Though the tough cough and hiccough ploughed me through,
Yet o'er life's lough my course I will pursue.

FOR ONCE, SILENT.

According to a Milwaukee despatch the father-in-law of William J. Bryan, Jr., announces the retirement of the big milling firm of which he is the chie owing to the fear of what would happen to the flour industry under Democratic tariff slashing. Had somebody else, especially some Republican, made such an announcement William Jennings Bryan, Sr., would be out with a denunciation of the man as a deliberate calamity howler. But for once W. J. B. is silent.

Who Does This Mean?

(From the Millheim Journal)

In a few words it may be said that Democratic County Chairman A. B. Kimport is all right. He manipulated the machinery when Centre county won the greatest Democratic victory it had in many years, and he has since not become nefficient. It is a mistaken idea that because one man was forced to give up his position in the Democratic state headquarters to make room for one in closer touch with the people, that all the Democrats in Centre county and in Pennsylvania are carrying daggers. The one thing the man who boasts in being a straight Democrat wants to keep in mind is that there are others. The straight Democrat, the honest politician, will not sulk when he is called on to step down out of office and go to work with the common herd to elevate others. If this is done the efficiency of Mr. Kimport as a county chairman will not be questioned by his present assailant.

W. P. Favour Dead.

W. P. Favour, a well known and highly respected resident of Janesville township, Greenwood County, Kansas, died suddenly at his late home at that place on Sunday evening, April 13th. Mr. Favour was a farmer. It is supposed that his death resulted from an accident of the previous evening. While engaged in cleaning out a hedge row he strained or wrenched his abdomen, the injury proving fatal just when preparations were being made for his removal to the hospital at Wichita. Mr. Favour was a native of Beloit, Wisconsin, at which place he was born in 1860. In 1870 he removed with his parents to Greenwood County, Kansas. In 1883 he was married to Miss Carrie Green, of Milesburg, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Green, former residents of that place but now living in Kansas. In addition to his widow he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Katherine Dales, of near Eureka. The "Herald" published at Eureka, in noting Mrs. Favour's death, said: "Mr. Favour was in the highest sense of the word a good citizen. He was exceptionally qualified by training and his love of nature as a good farmer and substantial fruits of his industry remain. He and his wife have been at all times public spirited, and leaders in all church and educational matters of their community. Though quiet and unassuming, he was ever a force for all that makes for high ideals in thinking and living."

William E. Miller Dead.

Willinm E. Miller, a member of the well known firm of John H. Miller Sons, grain dealers, died at Tyrone at noon last Thursday. Mr. Miller became ill about four weeks ago with a complication of diseases. At times his condition was improved, but a turn for the worse took place two or three days ago and he gradually grew weaker until he passed away. He was the son of the late John H. Miller, deceased, and Nancy K. Bottorf Miller. He was born at Pine Grove Mills forty-six years ago last February. When a young man he moved to Petersburg and in 1888 located in Tyrone. Twenty-three years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Grace Chamberlain, who with the following children mourn the death of husband and father: Fred, Robert D., Jessie and Miriam. He is also survived by his mother and the following brothers and sisters: John K., Charles O., Miss Blanche, of Tyrone, and Mrs. W. A. Krebbs, of Ebensburg.

Mrs. Anna M. Robertson Dead.

Mrs. Anna Malissa Robertson, widow of Joshua Robertson, died at 10.15 o'clock Wednesday night of last week at the Altoona hospital from a complication of diseases. She had formerly resided at Mill Run, from which place she was taken to the hospital on October 18, 1912. She was born at WarriorsMark on May 11, 1851, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. She is survived by the following sisters: Mrs. Albert Irvin, Mrs. C. R. Waggoner, Mrs. H. P. Wilson, Mrs. C. R. Dibert, Miss Kate Benner, all of Altoona, and Mrs. George T. Herr, of Norristown.

Mrs. Sarah A. Chaney Dead.

A splendid woman and devout Christian was called to her final reward when death closed the eyes of Mrs. Sarah A. Chaney, on Sunday evening, April 27th, at the home of her son, H. S. Chaney, at Port Matilda. Her passing away marked the culmination of an illness which extended over a period of several months. Her death was due to a gradual breaking down of the system incident to advanced age. At the time she passed away she was aged 79 years, 10 months and 11 days. Funeral services were held Wednesday, April 30th, from the Port Matilda Presbyterian church. Interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetery at that place. Before her marriage the deceased was Miss Sarah Peters. Her husband was Alexander Chaney, now deceased. Endowed with a genial, sunny disposition, and possessing many beautiful qualities, Mrs. Chaney won and retained the affectionate esteem of a wide circle of friends. By those who knew her intimately her passing away is deeply mourned. Surviving are three sons, Herbert and H. S. Chaney, of Port Matilda, and Clifford Chaney, of Tyrone.

John H. Burrows Dead.

John Hubbell Burrows died at 12.30 o'clock last Thursday morning, at his residence in Williamsport. He was born July 9, 1829, and was almost 84 years of age. He was married October 9, 1855, to Jane G. Zieger, who with two daughters, Kathryn and Mrs. Justin L. Hill, survive him. Mr. and Mrs. Burrows celebrated their golden wedding in 1905. Mr. Burrows served during the Civil war in Company K, One Hundred and Eleventh Illinois Infantry, and in Battery A, Twelth United States Artillery, and made for himself an excellent record. He seved as collector of internal revenue for many years.

Ambrose McKivison Dead.

Ambrose McKivison, a well known young man at Scotia, died at 4 o'clock Sunday morning, last, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McKivison, at that place. He had been ill but two or three days, his death being due to pneumonia. Deceased was aged 19 years and is survived by his parents and several sisters and brothers. Funeral services were held on Tuesday, interment being made at Martha Furnace.

Mrs. Samuel Krider Dead.

Mrs. Samuel Krider died at her home at Tyrone on Sunday morning from a complication of diseases. Deceased was a native of Indiana County, where she was born September 25, 1851. Forty-two years ago she was married to Samuel Krider, of WarriorsMark valley, who preceded her to the grave three years ago.

The Beard in Tunis.

In Tunis when a reigning prince finds it necessary to go outside his immediate family to choose his successor he follows an odd custom. There the wearing of hair on the face is the exclusive privilege of sovereignty. When the prince selects a successor he sends the court barber to the fortunate individual to notify him that he may wear a beard. This intimation is equivalent to a formal announcement that he has been selected as the heir presumptive.

Dumas and Coppee.

The following interesting story is going the rounds of the European press:

"Francois Coppee's one act play, 'The Passerby,' in which Mme. Bernhardt appeared, attracted much attention in France. The elder Dumas was so enthusiastic over Coppee's little play that he embraced the author in the foyer of the theater in the presence of a large gathering and exclaimed:

"'Oh, you talented man; tell me your name!'

"But Coppee was on guard. He knew Dumas; he knew that he was leading a luxurious life and that he borrowed money right and left to maintain such a mode of life. And Coppee was known as a rather stingy young man.

"In answer to the flattering question of Dumas, Coppee also embraced him and said:

"'Oh, divine Dumas, I shall never dare to mention my insignificant name in your presence!'

"Dumas was flattered. He shook Coppee's hand warmly and exclaimed:

"'I wish that every young Frenchman were as modest as you are!'"

Tainted Money.

SHIED AT HOMEMADE SOAP.

The Sight of It Used to Make Stuart Robson Shudder.

A good story is told of one of the boyhood experiences of the late Stuart Robson, the comedian. It was the custom of his mother to keep a scrap book of household recipes clipped from the newspapers. She came across one that told how to make castile soap and started in at once to make it.

The recipe for this soap called for tallow grease and fat combined with coloring matter and lye, and the advantage claimed for it was that it economized the scraps in the kitchen.

The first person upon whom the soap was tried was young Robson, who was given a cake of it to use while taking a bath. Early one morning he entered the bathroom armed with a towel and a huge cake of the homemade soap. A few minutes after wild yells were heard from the bathroom.

The whole household ran to the spot and, after some delay, succeeded in forcing an entrance. There Mrs. Robson found her hopeful son in a semistate of convulsions, fiercely dancing around in a hysterical attempt to rid his body of a bright tan colored layer of grease.

It seems that as soon as young Robson had stepped from the bath the soap, which he had used plentifully, had in a most peculiar manner hardened on him like cold gravy in a dinner plate and clung to him tenaciously, utterly refusing to be wiped off.

The combined efforts of his parents succeeded in scraping it off, but from that day to the day of his death Mr. Robson had a strong aversion to home made soap.

Saved Himself.

Soon after Speaker Champ Clark had been married he left home one morning in a fit of mental abstraction and forgot to give his wife the customary farewell kiss.

On the way down the walk he remembered and at once knew he was in trouble. Wondering what excuse he could offer, he turned back to the house. In a flash of inspiration he remembered the date. Reaching the door, to which Mrs. Clark came with rather a grim smile, Champ held up one hand and shouted:

"April fool!"—Washington Star.

Why He Wept.

At a reception one night a loud voiced young man was invited to sing. Desultory applause followed, and he responded with a vociferous rendering of "My Old Kentucky Home." The hostess was passing among her guests, beaming at the success of her entertainment and sure that everybody was having a good time when suddenly, to her surprise, she came upon a middle aged man but slightly known to her who was weeping silently but bitterly in a secluded corner. Thinking that his heart had been touched by the old song, she asked sympathetically:

"ARE YOU A KENTUCKIAN?"

"Why do you weep? Are you a Kentuckian?"

"No, madam," he replied. "I am a musician."—Woman's Home Companion.

With a Sense of Humor.

Authors with enough real sense of humor to tell good stories on themselves are rare, but Luther Munday, journalist and world wanderer, has that quality. In his volume of memoirs, "A Chronicle of Friendships," he tells on himself the following yarn:

"From time to time, after the manner of weaklings, I fancied myself a little at writing sonnets, notwithstanding the fact that I had had one snubbing from Yates, the editor of the London World. 'Twenty years have passed,' said I, 'and I may have improved.' So I sent up to Sir James Knowles this time my sonnet called 'Why Do I Live?' His reply was, 'You live, dear Munday, because you sent your poem by post and did not bring it yourself.'"

His First Tabasco.

He came from the backwoods and had never eaten oysters before. When the waiter served him a dozen steamed on a plate he picked up the bottle of tabasco sauce and removed the stopper. Then he drenched the oysters with the fiery fluid. There were a few seconds of painful suspense. Then the old man rushed over to the wall, pulled down the fire extinguisher and started to eject the contents toward his parched throat.

"Hold on, there!" shouted the frightened waiter. "Don't you see that is labeled 'For Fire Only?'"

The old man mopped the teardrops from his eyes.

"Waal, gosh all hemlock!" he ejaculated hoarsely. "Wasn't it fire that I swallowed?"—Judge's Library.

Cookery Points

Apple Snow.

Core and quarter but do not pare three large tart apples. Stew tender and rub through a sieve. Beat the whites of three eggs stiff with a cupful of powdered sugar and beat into the apples and continue to beat until like snow. Pile lightly into a glass dish and set in a very cold place. Make an orange or vanilla custard with a pint of milk, three eggs, a level tablespoonful of cornstarch and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Beat the sugar, cornstarch and eggs together until light and then pour over them, stirring rapidly, the scalded milk. Return to the double boiler and stir and cook until smooth and thick. Remove from the fire and add a pinch of salt and flavoring of vanilla. When the sauce is cold freeze it about as stiff as water ice and serve with the ice cold apple snow.

Vegetable Soup.

A good soup is made in the following way: One tablespoonful barley, half a cupful diced onions, half a cupful diced potatoes, half a cupful cut cabbage, half a cupful diced carrot, half a cupful tomatoes, half a cupful celery cut fine, a tablespoonful salt, a quarter teaspoonful white pepper and a tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley. From three and three-quarters pounds (cut roast) of beef take the bottom part, which has the rib bone in. Wipe the meat with a piece of wet cheesecloth, put in saucepan, cover with three quarts boiling water, boil slowly one hour, then remove the meat and add the following vegetables: Barley, onion, potatoes, cabbage, carrot, tomatoes and celery. Cook until tender and serve steaming hot.

Creamed Potatoes.

Creamed potatoes may be made from freshly boiled or cold potatoes diced. For one pint of potatoes make a white sauce, using a tablespoonful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a cupful of milk, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a little cream and salt and pepper to season. Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the flour and cook and stir until smooth and well cooked. A frequent cause of failure with creamed potatoes comes from the raw taste of the flour. Add the milk and seasoning and, if you have it, half a cupful of cream. As soon as the sauce begins to thicken add the potatoes, whole, diced or cut in small balls with a potato scoop. Do not stir. When heated through serve at once.

Prune Pudding.

Take to one large cup of prunes five apricots or prunellas. Cook tender; remove the pits; return to the pot; add half a cupful of sugar and cook to a pulp. Remove as much of the skin as possible and when quite cool add the beaten whites of two eggs and beat rapidly for ten minutes. Heap in glasses and serve with a vanilla custard made of the yolks of the eggs, one pint of milk and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. If you wish to use the whites for another purpose whipped cream may be served or the custard alone is quite sufficient for a plain dessert.

Sauted Codfish.

For this breakfast dish remove skin and bones from three slices of fresh codfish and cut each slice in two pieces. Season with a little salt and plenty of pepper and dredge with flour. Dip each piece in beaten egg and then into cracker meal and saute in hot fat. Have ready a dressing made by stirring an ounce of butter to cream, adding a tablespoonful of lemon juice, a tablespoonful minced parsley, an eighth of a tablespoonful of grated nutmeg. Spread this over the hot fish and serve. Other fish may be done in the same manner.

Halibut a la Creole.

Get a thick square piece of halibut or other firm flaked fish if preferred. Wash well in cold water, wipe dry and lay in a baking dish well buttered or spread with bacon fat. Season with salt and pepper. Mince a clove of white garlic as fine as possible and strew over the fish. Stick in a whole clove here and there, far apart; then add a half pint of fresh or canned tomatoes. Bake until the flakes separate and look dry. Take up carefully and serve with garnish of parsley and cut lemon.

Fillet of Mackerel.

Cut each mackerel into four fillets; remove the dark skin. Put them into a basin with pepper and salt, thyme and a bayleaf, three shallots cut into pieces, some sprigs of parsley. Add to these two tablespoonfuls of oil and one of French vinegar and allow them to marinade for three hours. Drain upon a napkin. Dip them in flour, then in beaten egg and breadcrumbs and fry to a golden color. Serve garnished with fried parsley.

Meat and Rice Croquettes.

To make these croquettes use one cupful of cold boiled rice, one cupful of finely chopped meat of any kind, half a teaspoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of butter, half a cupful of milk and an egg. Put the milk on to boil and add the meat, rice and seasoning. When this boils add the egg, well beaten, and stir one minute. When cool form into rolls, dip in beaten egg and fry in hot lard.

The Scrap Book

True Loyalty.

Jenkins, a newly wedded suburbanite, kissed his wife goodby the other morning and, telling her he would be home at 6 o'clock that evening, got into his auto and started for town.

At 6 o'clock no hubby had appeared, and the little wife began to get nervous. When the hour of midnight arrived she could bear the suspense no longer, so she aroused her father and sent him off to the telegraph office with six telegrams to as many brother Elks living in town, asking each if her husband was stopping with him overnight.

Morning drew near, and the frantic wife had received no intelligence of the missing man. As dawn appeared a farm wagon, containing a farmer and the derelict husband drove up to the house, while behind the wagon trailed the broken down auto. Almost simultaneously came a messenger boy with an answer to one of the telegrams, followed at intervals by five others. All of them read:

Yes, John is spending the night with me.

The New Thought.

When hope recoils I clear a path
For mortals where the road is hard.
I reap from failure's aftermath;
I enter where the gates are barred.

O'er seas unsailed I hold the helm.
I cleave a passage through the air.
I find the goal of every realm.
My questing foot is everywhere.

I raise the burden for the faint
And press his shoulder to the wheel.
Train him to scorn the weak complaint
And bruise distrust beneath his heel.

Who woos me finds his boon at length
Unaided, while for other's sakes
He shares the brotherhood of strength
And to his helpful self awakes.

—John Troland.

Getting the Collar On.

A prosperous farmer has gained the reputation of being the stingiest man in his town and consequently is not a general favorite with his neighbors. He owns an old horse which, to put it mildly, is very thin. As if to make up for the lack of flesh on its body, however, the animal has a head many sizes too large for it. Of course people talk about the horse, and the owner doesn't like it. Last week, for instance, he went to the expense of a new collar for the animal. A very few minutes after the delivery he was back at the saddler's with the collar.

"Don't you know nothin'?" he blurted out. "You've made it too small. I can't get it over his head."

"Over his head!" reiterated the saddler. "Man alive, it wasn't made to go over his head! Back him into it!"—Everybody's.

A Nice Distinction There.

A noted journalist and author, whose name we cannot mention because he is on our paper, is constantly importuned by a celebrated New York portrait painter to sit for him.

"I'd do it, too," the author told a friend, "only I'm not quite clear just when to tell George I will. When he has imbibed a bit too much he wants to paint my portrait, and when he hasn't he wants me to come and have my portrait painted."—New York World.

His Hard Luck Day.

It was School Superintendent Buster's unfortunate day. A bucket had been left standing in the dimly lighted corridor of No. 19, and on the way to Miss Dexter's classroom he stumbled over it. Fortunately none of the children heard what he said there in the dark, so the chief harm done was to his shin. He entered Miss Dexter's class sadly ruffled in dignity and temper and slammed the door. Miss Dexter was at the blackboard, with her back to the class.

"If that bad mannered little boy," she commented, without turning, "will go out of the room again and come in again, closing the door properly behind him, I shall overlook his lack of breeding this time." Then she turned.

Miss Dexter was abject in her apologies, but who can minister to wounded dignity, especially of the pedagogical type? In a vain effort to regain his customary poise, Superintendent Buster forced a sickly smile and addressed himself to the class of small children.

"Now, children," he began unctuously, rocking back and forth on his heels and with hands deep in pockets, "I wonder whether you know who I am?"

For a moment there was expectant silence, then a small hand was raised.

"Well," said the superintendent encouragingly, "who am I?"

"You're no gentleman," was the pitilessly logical reply, "or you wouldn't have your hands in your pockets."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Their Welcome.

On the arrival of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught in Khartum three years ago it was thought by the troops, says the Egyptian Gazette, that it would be right to decorate the place as much as possible. Accordingly, with infinite pains, a triumphal arch was erected, to the great satisfaction of all concerned.

A picture of the queen and the Prince of Wales graced the arch, but no pictures of the duke and duchess were to be obtained for love or money. Advice was therefore sought from one of the English sergeants, and he advised placing a notice between the two portraits referred to bearing the inscription, "Let 'em all come."

This was accordingly done, much to the amusement of the duchess, who insisted on taking a snapshot of the arch.

Three-Eyed Chick.

Henry Thompson, of Washington, Pa., is the owner of what he believes to be the only three-eyed chick in existence. The fluffy little freak was hatched on Monday and bids fair to become a goodly specimen of the feathered tribe of bipeds. The extra optic is located just above one of the ordinary eyes and is perfectly formed.

Miss Veta Patton spent Saturday in Tyrone.

Mrs. George Reese and Mrs. Charles Bennet visited in Tyrone last week.

At the meeting of Presbytery held in town last Thursday Rev. Mr. W. F. Carson was installed as pastor of the Presbyterian churches at Port Matilda and Unionville.

Walter Bennet, of Tyrone, was a caller in town for a short time one day last week.

Last Friday evening a large number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Chester Pringle in celebration of the birthday of his wife. After spending an enjoyable evening playing games, refreshments were served and at a late hour the guests returned home wishing Mrs. Pringle many more happy birthdays. The following evening another party surprise was given at the home of R. A. Patton in honor of his daughter Beatrice's birthday.

Mrs. John Robison has returned home from a two weeks visit with relatives in the vicinity of Pittsburg.

Lain Woodring and family spent a few days recently with friends in town.

We are sorry to note the death of Mrs. Sarah Chaney, one of our most aged and respected resident who departed this life last Sunday evening at eight o'clock. Her loss will be keenly felt in the community.

William Cowher has moved into the house of the deceased Mrs. Sarah Chaney.

Call all the hard C's with the K's
They gave an inch, but took an L,
And, though it seems too sad to tell,
They stole away the printer's M.
Brave O went circling after them
And found the cockneys with the N's
Devouring P's. He took his Q
And trilled his R's and rolled them, too;
He hissed the S's, drank his T

Child Scalded to Death.

A 4-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Clark, of Woolrich, died on Sunday, last, from scalding. On the previous day the child toppled over backward into a tub of boiling water. He was pretty badly scalded on one side of the body, but he apparently did not suffer much pain and it was not suspected that his condition was at all critical. To the surprise of the family and the attending physician the child took a sudden turn for the worse on Sunday morning and a few minutes later was dead.

HAD GREAT CELEBRATION

Centre County Odd Fellows Delighted With Trip to Jersey Shore.

Members of the Bellefonte lodge and also those from other Centre County lodges of Odd Fellows returned home delighted withlast Friday's celebration at Jersey Shore. The day's festivities marked an event in Odd Fellowship that will long be remembered by all who were for tunate enough to be present.

Jersey Shore was in gala attire for the occasion. All the way the line of the parade lay through magnificently decked streets. There were thousands of American flags, there were thousands more flags that had no particular meaning except to form part of the decorations, there were thousands of yards of bunting and hundreds of Odd Fellow emblems.

There were over 3,000 men in line. Fifty passenger cars dumped their living freight into the borough during the morning and there was a busy time receiving the visitors. Almost every town in Central Pennsylvania was represented —at least every one of any size. Odd Fellowship had put its best foot foremost. The weather man had done his duty and the Odd Fellows and the people of Jersey Shore welcomed their guests and the day with enthusiasm.

The crowds of visitors began arriving in the borough at an early hour that morning and kept right on coming until at noon it was estimated that the seven thousand people of Jersey Shore were in the minority on the streets. The special and regular trains over the New York Central were jammed with incoming Odd Fellows and their friends. Every delegation received a joyous greeting from the three-link fraternity of Jersey Shore and the hospitable people of the town as they marched up Allegheny Street to their headquarters. When the Williamsport special with about 800 town people aboard arrived at the station there were cheers for Billtown, and "Hello Bill" greeted the boys everywhere. The Repasz band headed the Williamsport I. O. O. F. delegation as it marched up the street five hundred strong, the band playing the Cantonians' march from Tannhauser. Closely following the Williamsport boys came the Montoursville Odd Fellows wearing natty white caps and marching to the music of the Independent Hose company band of South Williamsport. Other delegations came from all points of the compass, practically every lodge in the district being represented.

The annual session of the Anniversary Association began shortly before 11 o'clock. In the absence of W. H. Kiess, the president, the meeting was called to order by the secretary, Henry B. Eberly. Judge Harvey W. Whitehead, a member of Amazon lodge No. 662, was elected president pro tem and presided over the session. In taking the chair he made touching reference to the illness of President Kiess. George W. Martin, of Renovo, deputy chaplain of the Patriarchs Militant of Pennsylvania, offered prayer. During the session Mr. Martin presented an engrossed testimonial to the services of President Kiess. It was ordered spread upon the minutes and a committee appointed to forward a copy to Mr. Kiess and his wife.

Among the important matters of business transacted was the decision to create the office of vice president, Norman T. Funston, of Iona lodge No. 729, was elected to fill the position. The other officers were re-elected, as follows: President, W. H. Kiess; secretary, Henry B. Eberly; treasurer, Abe A. Myers, all of Williamsport.

After a lively contest between Lewisburg and Bloomsburg for the honor of entertaining the association in 1914, Lewisburg was selected. Before the vote was taken an effort was made to pass a resolution accepting invitations from only such towns as were represented by large delegations at the annual reunion. The resolution was defeated by a large majority.

Charles S. Neff, of Lodge No. 101 acted as chief marshal of the parade. Fred A. Williamson was chief of staff and his aides were A. P. Zuber and George C. Bittings. Independent Hose Company, No. 1, acted as escort. Behind a large American flag came the members of the executive committee, headed by the chairman, H. F. Zarr. Then came Jersey Shore's crack musical organization, the New York Central shop band heading the department commander and staff and the Fourth Regiment, Patriarchs Militant.

The first division was marshalled by Dr. J. Sweisfort, of Danville, with Charles F. Greevy, of Williamsport, and G. C. Miller, of Bellefonte, as aides. In this division were lodges from Potter, Blair, Bradford, Cameron and Lycoming counties, the Williamsport delegation carrying off the honors for numbers.

Jesse C. Higgins, of Lewisburg, was marshal of the second division. His aides were F. W. McGrady, of Mt. Carmel, and William F. Faust, of Milton. In line were lodges from Tioga, Snyder, Union, Northumberland, Schuylkill, Dauphin, Centre, Lackawanna, Montour and Luzerne counties.

At the head of the third division was John L. Miller, of Sunbury, marshal. His aides were Thomas R. Buck, of Berwick, and Joseph Oakes, of Mt. Carmel. Delegations from Sullivan, Columbia and Clinton counties were in this division, followed by the Jersey Shore lodges, nearly every member of which was in line.

After these came a string of automobiles carrying the chief burgess and members of the borough council, aged and infirm Odd Fellows, members of the Rebekah lodges and grand officers of the Rebekahs.

The parade was declared one of the finest in the history of Jersey Shore.

Although there was by far the largest crowd on the streets that Jersey Shore had ever known, there was but one serious accident. Gladys Hall, aged six, of Jersey Shore, was run over by an automobile about 5 o'clock in the evening. She had one of her collar bones broken and her face lacerated.

There was a single case of pocket picking reported. W. E. Tobias, of Mackeyville, who had attended the anniversary with a roll was relieved of $129 in a dense crowd at Main and Allegheny streets. The butcher discovered his loss soon after he had been "touched" but neither he nor the police was able to locate the thief.

The size of the visiting crowd was estimated at over 7,000. Five special trains brought in almost as many thousands of visitors.

The after-parade events were a session of the Rebekah assembly and the conferring of the Rebekah degree by the Viola May lodge of the woman's branch of the order in the hall of Jersey Shore lodge, No. 101, I. O. O. F.; a meeting of the grand lodge in the same hall, and the conferring of the degree of chivalry by the Patriarchs Millitant at the Young Men's Christian Association hall. The degree was conferred by Major General Andrews assisted by Canton Ridgely, No. 8, of Williamsport.

A beautiful feature of the day was the sending of an engrossed memorial to President William H. Kiess, president of the anniversary association and colonel of the Fourth Regiment of the Patriarchs Millitant, who is critically ill at his home in Williamsport. The memorial was presented by Department Chaplain Georga W. Morton of the Patriarchs Millitant.

Compare Your Baby With These.

The Woman's Home Companion is carrying on a great fight for "Better Babies" by promoting baby shows at which the standard of perfection is health rather than beauty. In the May number it reports a unique and scientific baby show recently held in Denver. Following is an extract showing what some of the standards are for judging children:

"The normal or perfect child presents the following physical points, counting that a girl baby weighs one pound less:

"Average Weight, Height and Circumference of Head and Chest of Boys:

"At birth—Weight, 7½lbs. Height 20½ inches. Chest, 13½ inches. Head 14 inches.

"One year—Weight, 21 lbs. Height, 29 inches. Chest, 18 inches, Head, 18 inches.

"Two years—Weight, 26½ lbs. Height, 32½ inches. Chest, 19 inches Head, 19 inches.

"Three years—Weight, 31 lbs. Height 35 inches. Chest 20 inches. Head, 19½ inches.

"Teeth—Central incisors appear about the seventh month; lateral incisors from eighth to tenth; anterior molars twelfth to eighteenth; eye and stomach, fourteen to twentieth; posterior molars, eighteenth to thirty-sixth.

"The child should first attempt to sit at about the sixteenth week, be fairly sucessful about the fortieth week, and firmly seated at the tenth or eleventh month.

The child should attempt to stand about the thirty-eighth week, and be sucessful at eleventh or twelfth month. He should walk unsupported at the fourteenth or fifteenth month—certainly not later than the eighteenth month. Precocity in walking is not desirable

"The skin should be pink, flesh firm and lips red, breath sweet, tongue clean. He should breathe through the nose only and should not be fretful. He should not be restlessly active, nor disinclined to play."

Defeated Normal Reserves.

The Bellefonte High School baseball club defeated the Lock Haven Normal School Reserves on Saturday. The score was 16-4. Meyers pitched a splendid game for the High School and received good support.

A SIMPLE PROBLEM.

The Section Boss Easily Got the Tool House In the Right Spot.

About ten years before the Eastern railroad was leased by the Boston and Maine that portion of the old road between Swampscott and Salem was in charge of Section Foreman Timothy Moynahan.

His strongest point was in doing just as he was told and doing that with energy and accuracy. So when he was notified from Beverly by Roadmaster Stevens that the section lengths were to be changed and that he was to move his tool house from the westerly end of Salem yard to halfway between mileposts 15 and 16 he started out with the determination to move the house halfway, no more, no less.

To get this halfway point he stationed one of his men at milepost 15 and another at milepost 16, and at a signal they started to walk toward each other until they met, and to a point opposite their meeting place the shanty was moved. This method of getting the correct distance did not quite suit Moynahan, especially when he remembered that one of the walkers was taller than the other and the other tripped several times on the way down.

He carried this in his mind for nearly a year, when he met the engineers measuring through for signals and asked them to tell him as they measured if his house was just halfway or not.

When the measurement was taken, the house was found to be sixty feet nearer milepost 16 than 15, and Moynahan, on being told, remarked that he thought he could fix things just right.

Later in the year the engineer met Moynahan in Salem and asked him if his tool house was now halfway between the mile posts.

"It is," he replied. "It's just halfway."

"Did you have much trouble moving it?"

"No trouble at all. I just let it stay as it was and moved the milepost."

Rough on Aunt Anna.

When Rev. Anna Howard Shaw's little grandniece of eight confessed to her mother that she could not be a suffragette because the other children made fun of her, her wee sister of six fiercely exclaimed, "I wouldn't be a coward; they've been making fun of Aunt Anna for hundreds of years!"

None to Spare.

In the days when the Clyde was navigable to Glasgow for only very small vessels, a steamer stuck in the mud near Renfrew, and the skipper was not sparing in strong language. While waiting for the rising tide he saw a little girl approaching the river with a bucket to fetch some water. This was too much for the poor captain, and leaning over the side and shaking his fist in rage at the little girl, he thus addressed her: "If you tak' ae drap o' water oot here till I get afloat, I'll warm yer ear for't."—Scottish American.

The Solemn Englishman.

An Englishman in New York got in a car and sat opposite to a lady who had a very peculiar looking child in her arms. An awfully funny looking kid it was, and the man could not keep his eyes away from it. He would look at it, look away and then look back again, absolutely fascinated by it, it was so ugly.

Finally the mother became very much annoyed over the man's rudeness and leaned over and said to him, "Rubber!"

A look of relief came over the Englishman's face as he exclaimed:

"Thank heaven, madam, I thought it was real."—New York American.

BLUM MEANT WELL.

He Was Only Living Up to the Rules of His Club.

Under the second empire bores were so rampant that a sort of society or club was formed to fight them under the name of the "Rachat des Captifs." It was a mutual aid society, every member of which was bound to come to the rescue of any other in the clutches of a buttonholing bore. The signal of distress was given by unobtrusively scratching the side of one's nose, and a colleague on seeing this was expected to intervene and deliver his friend from captivity.

The society was so useful and so popular—even humanitarian, it may be said—that it flourished exceedingly for many years and grew rich in members and subscriptions. Among its members was the veteran journalist Ernest Blum, who, however, was rather clumsy at his work. He used to relate the following story:

"One day in passing the Gymnase I saw two men talking. I knew one of them and took off my hat to him, whereupon he at once scratched his nose.

"I, of course, thought, he was a member of the club in distress whom I ought to deliver, so approached and not knowing what to say, cried out: 'My dear X., I am delighted to meet you. I have an important piece of news to tell you. Allow me?' turning to the other man. 'Certainly,' replied this gentleman. I took my comrade aside, saying: 'You know I have nothing at all to tell you. I only wanted to rescue you. That is all.' 'Rescue me from what?' 'Why, from the bore.' 'What bore?' 'The man you were talking to, naturally.' 'But he is my father.'"

Poor Blum had chanced upon somebody who was not a member of the society and who had merely scratched his nose absently or because he wanted to, which may happen to any man.—Paris Annales.

Fitted For the Part.

When a new member of the Irish house of commons made his first speech, Sir William Osborne asked who he was, and being told he replied: "Well, I think he will do. If the opposition have enlisted him, they are perfectly in the right, for he seems to have the finest face for a grievance of any man I ever beheld."—National Monthly.

A Remington Story.

On Thanksgiving day a number of years ago the late Frederic Remington was in London, his first visit to England, where he announced to his friends he intended to "have a real vacation, away from mustangs and Indians." As a tribute to the noted artist, American residents in London joined in arranging a splendid Thanksgiving feast. Remington, of course, to be the guest of honor. The chef of the Hotel Carlton was told to spare no expense in obtaining fat gobblers, bluepoints, sweet potatoes and other trimmings for the genuine old time dinner.

Not a hitch occurred to mar the occasion excepting that Remington failed to turn up. While London was raked fore and aft for the celebrated artist, the guests politely waited, waited until their stomachs quaked and their mouths watered for the luscious turkey. Late that night, when the feast was long since despoiled, one of the guests wandered into Buffalo Bill's wild west show at Earl's court. Remington sat there drawing.

"Do not disturb him," ordered Colonel Cody. "He's getting some good local color from these Creek Indians. He's been here since 10 o'clock this morning."—Philadelphia North American.

Missed a Fine Chance.

A well known doctor and a certain minister are great friends, but they dearly love a joke at each other's expense.

The latter once delivered a series of lectures, and one of them—on Palestine—was not interesting enough to please the audience, which gradually withdrew before its conclusion. Not long afterward the minister's house was entered by a burglar. He gave a graphic account of the affair to his friend, the doctor, and ended by saying:

"I had him on the flat of his back. I held him so that he could not move an inch."

"Good!" exclaimed the other. "But, my dear sir, what a splendid opportunity that was to have delivered to him your lecture on Palestine."

A New One on Him.

It was in one of those thriving southwestern cities where railroads abound that a tired and weary traveler accosted a policeman and asked the way to the Y. M. C. A. The copper was puzzled. He took off his hat and scratched his head. Finally he burst out: "Stranger, you've got me. I know where the Frisco is and the M., K. and T., but that Y. M. C. A. is a new one on me."—Everybody's.

The Crops.

Bradstreet's Weekly Report says: Crop reports are encouraging. Winter wheat is in excellent shape, and needed rains are reported in the states west of the Mississippi. Kansas crop reports are the best since 1908, and an unprecedented crop is possible in that state. Showers have tended to delay spring-wheat seeding in parts of the northwest, but though a little late, progress is good as a whole in that section. Oats seeding is active in the northern belt. An area a trifle less than last year's is indicated, partly because of lower prices and also because there may be a natural reaction from last year's large acreage, which, it will be recalled, supplanted killed-out winter wheat. In Ohio the area in oats will be smaller, also probably in Indiana and Illinois. Corn plowing is making fair progress, but planting is only completed in Texas and Oklahoma.

In the south the general report is favorable as to crop progress or planting the only uncertainty being in the southern Mississippi valley, where the fight to hold the levees still goes on. A few breaks have flooded some areas in Arkansas and Mississippi, but in Louisiana the levees still remain intact. Except near San Antonio, in Texas rains are reported to have been general and to have practically assured wheat and oats yields. Cotton is doing well, though the weather has been too cool. There will be a larger area in corn and other fodder crops in the south, but the area in cotton promises to be as large as in the heaviest years.

Signs Railroaders' Bill.

Governor Tener has approved the Beidleman Senate bill providing for semi-monthly payment of wages and it will become effective on July 1 of this year. The bill was urged by organized railroad men and State Federation of Labor and was introduced in both houses, the Senate bill getting through first. A bill with a similar object was vetoed in 1911 because it interfered with the right of contract, but this feature is provided for in the new law.

The governor also signed a House bill validating receivers' sales of real estate held subsequent to act of May 11, 1911, in cases where notices of sales have been mailed within time specified in act, and House bill amending act of May 11, 1911, by providing a system of notices of sales.

Senate bill regulating service of writs on mechanics and other liens was also approved.

What Is a Fireproof Building?

Nearly all modern industrial enterprises are housed in buildings that are to some extent fireproof. The question may reasonably be asked, What constitutes a fireproof building? Nothing is more fireproof than a furnace, and yet the decomposition of its contents by fire is its chief use. Buildings must therefore not only be made of non-inflammable material, but they must be so arranged that fire when started can be confined to one room or to the smallest possible space. With this object in view they should be equipped with self closing metal doors and windows with wire glass or metal shutters. They should have automatic fire alarms and, above all, an adequate sprinkler system. Steel framing must be inclosed and protected with some material, such as brick, tile, terra cotta or concrete. Under these conditions, with insurance on the contents, a manufacturing enterprise is reasonably safe.—Engineering Magazine.

Old Time Toasts.

Toasts are now rarely proposed except at public dinners, but there was a time when they were the order of the day at every convivial gathering. The compiler of a book published in 1797, "The Toastmaster," remarks in his preface that "it is the custom in most societies, whether public or private, for the president to call on the company in their turn for a toast. Individuals are consequently often at a loss. This collection of genteel sentiments and toasts will supply their deficiency, as it contains a larger number than ever was before published, the greater part of which are spirited and new." The genteel toasts range from the righteous, such as "May contemplation upon our last resting place check vain hopes and prevent weak despondency," to the frivolous, such as "Lots of beef, oceans of beer, a pretty girl and a thousand a year."—London Chronicle.

Cut the Ship In Two.

"I was a passenger on one of the old fashioned sailing steamers going from London to Australia in 1888," said a traveler. "In the Red sea we ran plump into a vessel, and our boat cut it entirely in two, so neatly that it might almost have been done with a huge knife. We went clean through her, and the men on the vessel struck stepped from the two halves of that ship on to our deck. The injured vessel went down within a few minutes after it had been struck. The thing was so strange that when the captain of the vessel we had struck went back to London an investigation was held, and it was substantially proved that the officers had with design got in the immediate track of our vessel in order to bring about a collision in the hope that they could collect insurance money. The captain and some of the officers were punished by imprisonment."

Dumas' Chicken on the String.

Amusing reminiscences of the elder Dumas have been supplied by his cook, Mme. Colin. Dumas' most famous recipe was "poulet a la ficelle" (chicken on the string). The plucked bird is suspended by a string from the ceiling and turned slowly before the fire. The flames, just touching it, brown it slowly. It took time, says the cook, but made a tasty dish.

"Dumas lived a higgledy piggledy life," said Mme. Colin. "He kept open house and always had at least fifteen people to dinner. But he lived from hand to mouth, and at times a sheet served as a tablecloth. After his receptions he sometimes worked all night. Such a muddle displeased me, especially as his guests were bohemians. So I left after six months of it."

A Good Reason.

Two Irishmen were digging a sewer. One of them was a big, strong man about six feet four inches in height, and the other one was a little, puny man about four feet six inches. The foreman came along to see how the work was progressing and noticed that one of them was doing more work than the other. "Look here," he cried, "how is it that little Dennis Dugan, who is only half your size, is doing nearly twice as much work as you, Patrick?" Glancing down to his partner, Pat replied: "And why shouldn't he? Ain't he nearer to it?"

Double Meaning.

Secrets of the Craft.

I.

Side remarks by distinguished author while composing the novel of the decade:

(a) "For heaven's sake, Mary, can't you stop that child crying without singing at the top of your voice? How is a man to get anywhere with all that noise going on?"

(b) "Yes, yes, yes, take the paste, take the shears, take the paper, take the ink, take the stamps, take anything, but let me work in peace!"

(c) "Oh, if you say so I suppose we must pay that fool call, but I do wish you'd remember that every minute taken out of my working day cuts down our income by just so much!"

Drunken Monkeys.

According to a letter from the Kongo region on the west coast of Africa, the monkeys there are inordinately fond of a kind of beer made by the natives, who use the beverage to capture their poor relations. Having placed quantities of the beer where the monkeys can get at it, the natives wait until their victims are in various degrees of inebriation, and when they then mingle with them the poor creatures are too much fuddled to recognize the difference between negro and ape. When a negro takes the hand of one of them to lead him off, some other fond creature clings to the hand of the latter one and another one to his hand. Thus a single negro may sometimes be seen carrying off a string of staggering monkeys. When secured the beer is administered in decreasing quantities, so that they may only gradually awaken to the sad results of their spree.—London Tit-Bits.

For American Citizens.

When the visitor approached the diplomatic gallery of the senate chamber the doorkeeper informed him, says a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger, that the gallery was reserved for foreign representatives.

"It is, hey?" said the visitor. "Well, I want to tell you right now that this is a free country, and this is the senate of the United States, and I demand admission in the name of American citizenship."

"Oh!" said the doorkeeper. "Why didn't you say at first that you were an American citizen? Just step around to the second door from here. That gallery is reserved for American citizens."

With chest puffed up the stranger betook himself to the door indicated and was at once admitted to the public gallery.

A King's Rebuke.

The queen of Wurttemberg was one day walking in the streets of Stuttgart attended by a maid of honor, when she met a body of students who refused to make room for the ladies, and thus compelled them to walk in the gutter. The queen reported the matter to the king, and the next day the captain of the corps Suevia was summoned to the palace. A servant led him into a room where there were no chairs, and there the unfortunate student had to wait a full hour. At last the king appeared, and finally the young man was dismissed by him thus: "I cannot demand that every student should know my wife, but I do demand that the corps Suevia give place in the streets to ladies."

The Crawfish's Tail.

The tail of a crawfish serves that animal as an oar. By a peculiar jerk of the tail the animal can retire from a dangerous object with almost incredible swiftness. The tail is much more effective in moving the animal backward than forward, a singular instance of adaptation to its situation, for by means of its tail it can withdraw into its hole with such swiftness as in an instant to place it out of danger.

They had quarreled again.

"Perhaps you are not aware," she said, "that I had over a dozen proposals of marriage before I accepted yours."

He flushed.

The Three Fates In Greece.

The peasantry of Greece firmly believe that the future of every child is determined by three fates, known as the Morai. The trio is supposed to be three old and wrinkled women who dwell in a mountain cave and who come simultaneously to the house in which a new baby has made its appearance. In order that their aged and uncertain feet may not be hindered, all furniture is carefully set aside, and honey, cakes, bread and wine are set out so that the important though invisible guests may refresh themselves. If the household is sufficiently wealthy to possess a little real money, this, too, is placed on the table with the food. All things, good and bad, are in the hands of the three fates. On no account must the child's beauty be alluded to at the time when the visitors might be present. To do so would cause its good looks to instantly disappear. Nothing must be said to annoy or displease the Morai, and this makes the situation a bit difficult, as no one is quite sure what might or might not displease them.

David Garrick's Realism.

In depicting moments of mental anguish, disorder and passion David Garrick was unequaled. "I liked him best in 'Lear,'" says a contemporary. "His saying in the bitterness of his anger, 'I will do such things—what they are I know not,' and his sudden recollection of his own want of power were so pitiable as to touch the heart of every spectator. The simplicity of his saying, 'Be these tears wet? Yes, faith!' putting his finger to the cheek of Cordelia and then looking at his finger, was exquisite." And in reference to the same character another tells us: "He rendered the curse so terribly affecting to the audience that during the utterance of it they seemed to shrink from it as from a blast of lightning. His preparation for it was extremely affecting; his throwing away his crutch, kneeling on one knee, clasping his hands together and lifting his eyes toward heaven presented a picture worthy of the pencil of a Raphael."—"David Garrick and His French Friends."

Strength of a Spider's Web.

When taking into consideration the materials employed, the size of the insect and the thickness of its thread the web of a spider is almost incomprehensibly strong. Late experiments have shown that a single thread of a web made by a spider, which weighed fifty-four milligrams, supported endwise a weight of four grams, or seventy-four times the weight of the spider itself. When a spider spins a web to let himself down from the ceiling or from the branch of a tree we may be certain that he is in no danger of falling, but that he could carry many more of his kind on the same thread. The threads of the web when interwoven and re-enforced one by another have a very considerable strength and are able to hold bees and wasps, themselves very powerful in proportion to their size, and to bend without breaking under a weight of dew and rain.

Under the Carriage Wheels.

Furious driving was one of the charges brought against the French aristocracy at the revolution. Said Mercier: "In Paris the people are weak, pallid, stunted—a class apart from other classes in the state. The rich and the great who possess equipages enjoy the privilege of crushing them or of mutilating them in the streets. Hundreds of victims die annually under the carriage wheels."

"I saw," wrote another observer, Arthur Young, "a poor child run over and probably killed and have myself many times been blackened with mud. If young noblemen in London were to drive their chaises in the streets as their brethren do at Paris they would speedily and justly get very well thrashed or rolled in the kennel."

Fish That Take Cold.

Fish are not equipped to combat rapid changes in temperature because the temperature of the water in the ocean, lakes and rivers beneath the surface remains virtually stable. Some fish, such as carp and trout, when taken from warm water and placed in water several degrees colder take cold. The cold attacks the skin and the fins, and various portions of the skin present a cracked, ridgelike appearance. If returned to warm water the fish usually recover, but sometimes the disease, which seems to be a sort of eczema, eats into the muscles of the fish and proves mortal.—New York Sun.

GREAT MASS OF PROOF

Reports of 30,000 Cases of Kidney Trouble, Some of Them Bellefonte Cases.

Each of some 6,000 newspapers of the United States is publishing from week to week, names of people in its particular neighborhood, who have used and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney backache, weak kidneys, bladder troubles and urinary disorders. This mass of proof includes over 30,000 testimonials. Bellefonte is no exception. Here is one of the Bellefonte cases.

James H. Rine, 239 W. High St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful kidney remedy. Ten years ago I first used them at that time I told in a public statement of the benenfit they brought. That statement still holds good. I have often urged my friends to try Doan's Kidney Pills and in every case where my advice has been followed, relief has been had from kidney trouble. Whenever I heard anyone complaining of kidney disorder, I advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills, knowing that they will have a good effect."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.—Advt.

$250,000 House Wedding President.

A New York dispatch says: "Mrs. Henry F. Shoemaker, wife of the banker, has bought one of the finest private residences in the Rockfeller neighborhood as a wedding gift for her son, Henry W. Shoemaker, who is to be married on May 10, to Miss Mable Ord, of San Francisco. The residence has been owned for several years by Mrs. Florence C. Eno Graves and she has been holding it at $230,000." Henry W. Shoemaker is well known in this section. He owns a country home at McElhattan and is the author of several books, including "Tales of Bald Eagle Mountain," which has just been placed in the James V. Brown library.

The Herbert Auman home was quarantined on Monday for scarlatina.

Fred Chambers, of Philadelphia, was greeting Bellefonte friends on Tuesday.

William H. Goss, of Pine Grove Mills, County Auditor, transacted business in town on Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Hatton and son, of Wilkes Barre, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rees.

Squire Jacob Keller and W. K. Corl, of Pine Grove Mills, made a business trip to Bellefonte Saturday.

Miss Meda Robb, of Altoona, visited in Bellefonte last week with her grandmother, Mrs. Alice A. Robb.

Roger T. Bayard, local editor on the "Tyrone Herald," spent Sunday with friends in Bellefonte and Centre Hall.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will meet in the Y. M. C. A. building Monday evening, May 5th, at eight o'clock.

J. Norman Sherer, of Harrisburg, was a Bellefonte visitor on Monday, enroute to Williamsport for the Furst--Harrar wedding.

Mrs. J. W. Kepler and two daughters and Mrs. L. D. Musser, of Pine Grove Mills, were shopping visitors in Bellefote on Saturday.

Rev. D. J. Frum, of Pleasant Gap, will preach in the Coleville Methodist Episcopal church on the evening of Sunday, May 11th, at 7.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Harry Keller returned home on Monday from Philadelphia, where she attended the wedding on Saturday of Mr. Keller's half-brother, John Keller, and Miss Hunn, both of Philadelphia.

The Bush House will now be able to extend patrons the comfort of hot and cold water in each sleeping room. Archie Allison on Monday started work installing new wash basins in twenty-four sleeping rooms.

The topics which Rev. Dr. G. E. Hawes will discuss at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath, are: Morning—"Our Lord's Ascension:" Evening—"First Sentence in the Will of J. Pierpont Morgan."

A meeting of the High School Alumni Association will be held in the High School building on Monday evening, May 5, at seven o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

K. F. WILLARD, Sec'y.

The Women's Auxillary of the Bellefonte Hospital, expect to hold a rummage sale some time during the month of May, and would appreciate it very much if those persons having articles suitable for such a sale would telephone to. MRS. JOSEPH CEADER, Pres't.—Bell-122 L.

J. Howard North, of Punxsutawney, has succeeded G. Fred Musser as manager of the Bellefonte branch of the Lauderbach-Barber Company. John Rumberger has succeeded R. W. Osman as shipping clerk and Andrew Fravel has taken the place of Philip Hoover as assistant shipping clerk. James Kane has succeeded James Haupt as driver.

John Rine, who years ago was employed as a molder at the old Lingle foundry in Bellefonte, was in town between trains one day last week. He has been working at DuBois for some time past. While here he said that he was enroute to Johnstown to become foreman in the foundry of the Globe Iron Foundry, at that place. His Bellefonte friends will be glad to learn of his success.

Henry Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keller, departed on Monday for Annapolis, Md., to take the physical examination for admission to the Naval Academy. Some time ago he took the mental examination and of 219 candidates he was one of 46 to qualify. The percentage of applicants to pass was the smallest in the history of the entrance examinations. In the event Henry srccessfuly weathers the physical examination he will be sworn in at once, preliminary to being assigned to some war vessel for an extended cruise.

Harry Yeager, the "fitzezy" shoe dealer, is not only enjoying a vigorous period of business in the shoe line but his white leghorn chickens are doing their part to contribute to his happiness and general prosperity. Harry has one hundred fancy white leghorn chickens in a large coop on the rear of his garden, in Spring Street, and the hens have been right on the job since the beginning of last December. The daily yield of eggs averages from seventy-five to ninety. Its a poor day when the chickens fail to present Harry with a $1 bill in clear profit.

The Study Class of the Women's Club will meet on Monday evening, May 4th, at 8 o'clock in the High School building. The subject for discussion is "The Trusts," and will be opened by a paper by Mr. Charles M. McCurdy, President of the First National Bank. Inasmuch as the subject for the evening bears largely upon finances and the cost of living, Mr. McCurdy will be at home in it and will treat it in his usual able manner. The discussion will then be opened to all. These meetings have been very interesting and the public is cordially invited and earnestly requested to attend.

Miss Catherine Allison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Allison, is plannjng what will prove to be a most delightful trip this summer. Several months ago James Ryman, who many years ago resided at Milesburg and who now is president of a bank in Missoula, Montana, visited in Bellefonte and was a dinner guest at the Allison home. He then told Catherine that Mrs. Dix and her two young daughters, of Washington, D. C., and also several other ladies, expected to visit his home during the summer and that he hoped to have her accompany them. Catherine thought Mr. Ryman was perhaps joking but several weeks later her parents received a letter which demonstrated that he was not. Mr. Ryman said that the several ladier would leave Washington on June 5th and that Mrs. Dix had written to say she would be delighted to have Catherine accompany them. Equally pleasing was a line in Mr. Ryman's letter stating that a draft would be forwarded to cover all of Catherine's expenses for the trip. It is likely that she will spend the greater part of the summer in Missoula.

Will Katz made a flying trip to New York on business this week.

E. P. Irvin departed on Saturday for a ten days' visit in Cherry Tree.

No toilet table is complete without a bottle of Cydonine—at Green's.

Mrs. E. Norris Bogle entertained at cards on Saturday evening of last week.

Charles Fulmer, of Montoursville, transacted business in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. Horton S. Ray is visiting in Tyrone with her sister, Mrs. Claude Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Thomas are home from Atlantic City, after a visit of several weeks.

Mrs. John W. Stuart, of State College, was the guest of Miss Myra Humes on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Morgan, of Snow Shoe, were shopping visitors in town yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lose and son visited over Sunday with friends in Bellefonte.

Miss Roxanna Mingle visited over Sunday with Miss Myrtle Fiedler in Williamsport.

Dr. L. E. Kidder and W. H. Stuart, of Boalsburg, were business visitors in Bellefonte on Tuesday.

Mrs. Cyrus Labe and daughter Elizabeth, leave today to visit for a week with Mrs. J. M. Lambert.

Henry Fox came over from Lewistown on Tuesday to visit with his daughter Mrs. Charles Brachbill.

Dr. J. L. Seibert is visiting at the home of his father in Newport. Mrs. Seibert is visiting in Philadelphia.

If you want to make your best girl smile get her a box of Liggett's Chocolates. You'll find them at Green's.

Mrs. Edward Cooke and daughter, Jeanette, of Baltimore, Md., have visited the past week with the former's sister, Miss Mollie Snyder.

Mrs. D. H. Hastings and two grandchildren, Janie and Louise Hickok, and Mrs. Louis aHar.is spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McFarlane, at Boalsburg.

The last meeting of the Bellefonte chapter, D. A. R., will be held at the home of Miss Myra Humes this evening, at which time officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Those who last week attended house parties at State College included the Misses Cooney, the Misses Walsh, Miss Elizabeth Galbraith, Miss Helen Ceader and Miss Louise Brachbill.

R. H. Zerby, vice president and general manager of the Lauderbach-Barber Co., spent several days in town this week in the interest of his company, returning today to his home in Philipsburg.

The Ladies Aid Society of the United Brethren church will hold a sale Saturday afternoon and evening. There will be offered for sale home-made bread, cakes, etc., also aprons and bonnets.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Mitchell departed yesterday for Lewistown, where they will visit for a week with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Mitchell and then go to Indianapolis, Ind., for an indefinite stay.

Miss Lulu McMullen on Tuesday evening entertained a number of friends at dinner at her home at Hecla Park. Her guests from Bellefonte included Mrs. Joseph Ceader, Mrs. C. M. Parrish and Mrs. T. A. Shomaker.

Henry S. Linn on Monday accompanied Joseph Knisely to Philadelphia to have the latter examined by a specialist. Joe's knee was injured in the unfortunate aut mobile a cident near Zion s me weeks ago and it was deemed advisable to have his leg examined by a specialist.

May 4th, the approaching Sunday, will be Communion Day at the Methodist Episcopal church in Bellefonte. A full attendance of the membership of the church is greatly desired. The Communion will be administered at both preaching hours.

Harry Hall, of Sunbury, a former Bellefonte boy, has been assigned a regular run as a brakeman on the Lewisburg division and in the future will be able to spend a part of each day in town. He started in on his new job on Monday.

There is no hope for a reduction in rates at the Adams Express office in Bellefonte. On the contrary, prices are likely to be higher from this time on. Agent Harry Taylor says that they need the money for the new member of the firm. The young man arrived in town on Monday and Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are very happy.

A blaze which slightly damaged the chicken coop at the rear of Rev. C. W. Winey's home yesterday succeeded in routing out pretty nearly everybody in town. The fireman promptly responded but there was little for them to do, a bucket brigade extinguishing the fire a few minutes after it was discovered. Mr. Winey is at a loss to understand how the blaze originated. A chicken brooder was destroyed.

The State College band will lead the street parade of the Academy minstrels, May 15th. The parade this year will be larger than ever. Mrs. Louise Garber will hold a dance immediately after the minstrel show on the night of the 15th. Keep in mind that on both nights at the minstrels, 15th and 16th, the curtain will go up at 8.15, sharp. This will enable all who wish to see the entire show and also attend the dances. Don't be late in getting to the Opera House. One of the prettiest features is presented just as the curtain rises.

Charley Guisewite, right hand man for R. B. Taylor, the contractor, on Tuesday started for Claysville, Washington County, where operations have been resumed on the State highway contract. Charley had in his charge three teams and Mr. Taylor's driving horse, expecting to take on two additional hauling teams at Pittsburgh. Mr. Taylor's big auto truck, which will carry a load of 3½ tons and which he will use principally in hauling asphalt, is expected to arrive from the factory some time this week. The truck bed is built somewhat on the lines of coal delivery wagons used in many places, the front end being raised and the load being dumped by gravity.

Mrs. William P. Wilson departed on Monday for Chester, where she is visiting with Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Hiller.

Henry Kline, proprietor of the Haag Hotel, transacted business in Altoona yesterday.

John H. Tressler, of Bellefonte, and Miss Bertha E. Musser, of Aaronsburg, were married last night by Rev. C. W. Winey at the United Brethren parsonage.

Wallace Hunter, son of Mrs. Minnie Hunter of State College, was admitted to the Bellefonte Hospital yesterday afternoon to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Misses Elsie and Verna Geiss, formerly of Centre Hall, are now located at No. 1702 Greene Street, Philadelphia, in charge of an apartment house, where they will be pleased to have persons visiting the city stop with them.

CONTRIBUTORS THANKED

Flood Sufferers Grateful for Check for $106.50.

The following letters are self-explanatory:

Miss Mary Bradley, Directress,
Bellefonte, Pa.

DEAR MISS BRADLEY:

The Governor desires to acknowledge the receipt of a check for $106,50 from the Centre County Banking Company, Bellefonte, Pa., being donation of the Bellefonte Choral Society to the flood victims. He immediately forwarded the same to Governor Cox of Ohio, with the request that it be used to relieve the suffering of the unfortunates in that State. Governor Tener has asked me to especially thank the members of your Society for their kindness.

Respectfully yours,
W. H. GAITHER,
Private Secretary.

Bellefonte Choral Society
Bellefonte, Pa.

TO THE MEMBERS:

I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of your contribution of $106.50 received through the office of the Governor, for the relief of the Ohio flood sufferers.

On behalf of Governor Cox and the people of Ohio, permit me to thank you for your very prompt and generous response in our time of need.

Yours very truly,
MACLEE WILSON,
Treasurer, Red Cross-Ohio
Flood Relief Commission.

Mrs. Latimer Billit Dead.

Mrs. Latimer Billit died after a few hours illness early yesterday morning at her late home at Coleville, her death occasioning the deepest sorrow among her many friends. Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at one o'clock, conducted by Rev. C. W. Winey. Deceased was aged 26 years, 9 months and 16 days. She was born in Centre County July 14, 1886. Before her marriage she was Miss Della Poorman, a daughter of Mrs. Sarah Poorman. Surviving to mourn her passing away are a husband, two daughters, Sarah and Martha, and an infant son. These brothers and sisters also survive: Allen Poorman, of South Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Harry Poorman, of Philadelphia; David, of Tyrone; Edward, of Akron, Ohio; Lemuel, of Huntingdon; Fred W., of Newton; Charles Poorman, Mrs. Fannie Hartsock and Mrs. Lillie Wian, of Bellefonte.

Opera House at State.

Last week's State College Times published the following: Robert M. Foster, who some time ago purchased the old Ewing property at the northeast corner of Allen and Beaver, will soon commence operations on a commodious building at that point which will combine an opera house with a seating capacity of 500, one or two storerooms on the first floor, two flats on the second and third floors and a basement room, which will be suitable for several lines of business.

From the plans exhibited by Mr. Foster the building will be fireproof and of light brick, reinforced with steelwork, and an ornament to that particular section. The opening of this buiding will break the way for an extension of the business section, which many supposed for a long time would not move from College avenue and Allen street. The construction of the Holmes building at College and Frazier and the Foster building on Beaver avenue, disproves this.

Mr. Foster, who is a wideawake business man, has in mind the advancement of the business interests of the town and with this end in view will have this new building so constructed that it can be entered from two sides—at least the plans so indicate. The auditorium of the theater will be about 40x70 with a completely equipped stage, and the storerooms 19x24 and 16x36 which can be utilized as one if so desired. The basement room will be about 50x60. The cost of the building is not given, but will run up into the thousands.

Clean Up Week.

Remember next week is Clean Up Week.

There is a general effort throughout the country to look to Municipal House Cleaning this Spring.

Our town stands much in need of it and after the epidemics which we had during the winter, it seems as if everyone should feel their responsibility in contributing to their own and the town's physical welfare.

The public properties are the hardest places to manage, but if the owners of buildings and lots will insist on good sanitary conditions and if the occupants of such buildings will endeavor to interest everyone in the building in complying with these conditions, it would be very little trouble to keep all such places clean and healthy. The vacant lots should not be allowed to be used as refuse heaps.
